THE REV. COY O. PRESSON, pastor of First Church of the Nazarene, begins the task of resetting each of the 75 clocks he has in his home. Daylight Saving Time ends at 2 a.m. Sunday, meaning that all clocks need to be set one hour earlier for Central Standard Time. He started collecting and repairing clocks five years ago and many of them date to the middle 1800s. The Rev. Mr. Presson commented that it is easier to stop a clock than to reset the time.

FBI Admits Monitoring Congress For 22 Years

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI, which never before had acknowledged that it maintained files on Congress members and candidates, now says that it had been doing so for 22 years but stopped the practice Friday.

"Such a program is not essential to FBI operations," said Acting Director L. Patrick Gray III as he ordered an end to it.

"I believe it is obvious that it can be misinterpreted easily as a program to investigate congressmen and congressional candidates," he added in the statement released to newsmen. "Therefore, I have decided to terminate this program as of today."

Gray said that, although the agency had maintained files of biographical data on congressional members and candidates, it had not conducted fullfledged investigations of them.

The FBI came under attack during the last years of the late J. Edgar Hoover's reign for allegedly tapping telephones of some congressmen or investigating them in other ways.

The FBI denied it. And Gray, in interviews shortly after he was appointed acting director, said:

"I have not found any evidence whatsoever of the existence of secret files or political dossiers."

Friday, though, Gray said an incident in Ohio brought to his attention the fact that the FBI since 1950 had compiled data on Congress members and candidates from newspapers, magazines, campaign literature and various reference publications.

The Ohio incident involved an FBI agent in Lorain County, who had been making inquiries about the background of John M. Ryan, Democratic candidate for Congress in Ohio's 13th district.

Gray said the agent's inquiries "were not authorized and were in violation of specific instructions that the gathering of information on congressional candidates is to be made from readily available published sources only, and not through any outside inquiries."

The FBI, he added, "is conducting an internal administrative investigation of this agent's actions to determine why this instruction was not followed."

The agent, Lee Kias, was functioning "as an interested voter" in asking about Ryan, said John Burns, agent in charge of the Cleveland FBI office.

Ryan, a realtor, is running against Republican incumbent Charles A. Mosher.

The initial purpose of the data collection, Gray said, "was to provide briefing material for FBI officials who might desire it before making a call on a newly elected congressman or senator."

"In short, the routine was a part of the congressional relations program of the FBI."

Portageville Farmer Dead From Beating

MARSTON — The badly beaten body of L.A. Davis, 73, a retired farmer was found at 4 p.m. Friday in a drainage ditch near his home on Portageville Route One.

Davis, who lived alone, appeared to have died from wounds caused by a sever beating about the face and nose with a sharp object nearly a week ago.

His body was discovered by a neighbor, H. A. Wilson, about 200 feet from Davis' home which is about four miles northwest of Marston.

New Madrid County Coroner Gene Clayton, who investigated the murder along with the New Madrid county sheriff's department, said there was no evidence of robbery and that $36 and keys to Davis' truck were found in his pocket.

Papers were found scattered near the truck and parts of his eye glasses and his cap were found about 50 feet from the body. Clayton said the body could not easily be seen from the road.

Wilson told authorities he had gone to the Davis home when Davis had failed to bring his mail to him for several days.

A coroner's jury viewed the body Friday night, and an inquest will be held early next week. Jury members are Raymond Howard, Howard Phillips, Howard Crisler, Ras Jones, William Allgier and Dale Ray.

Leonard Andrew Davis was born Oct. 19, 1899 at Clubb, Mo., to the late John and Victoria Davis.

He was a veteran of World War I.

Survivors include two sons, John Davis of Sikeston and Robert Davis of Bertrand Route One; one daughter, Mrs. Margaret Conci of Murphysboro, Ill.; one brother, Robert O. Davis of Fenton; one sister, Mrs. Hattie Ward of California; and 12 grandchildren.

The body is at Welsh Funeral Home in Sikeston where friends may call after 1 p.m. Sunday.

Services will be held Monday at 11 a.m. in the funeral home with the Rev. Wade Paris, pastor of Murray Lane Baptist Church, officiating.

Burial will follow in St. Libory Cemetery in Patterson.

Strike Pact Close For GM In St. Louis

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Tentative agreement has been reached in a dispute between General Motors and the United Auto Workers Union over production standards and layoffs at the St. Louis plant.

A company spokesman said the agreement Friday night settles "the major issues in dispute." He declined to comment on the pact, pending the outcome of a union ratification meeting scheduled next Wednesday.

Bond Issue Referendum Delayed Until November

A million- dollar bond issue referendum for a new school probably will not be held until late November, Superintendent of Schools Sam Harbin said Friday. He listed Nov. 28 as a possible date.

The election was originally set for Oct. 31, but school officials overlooked a 1969 law stating that only registered voters can vote in school elections.

Harbin said this meant the board must have district voter registration books. In the past, voters were allowed to vote at any school they wished. Harbin said the 1969 law requires that voters be assigned by ward and precinct to a specific school.

However, since some residents of the Sikeston school district live in New Madrid County, the board cannot do this until New Madrid County voters decide whether or not to establish voter registration. The county will vote on the issue on Nov. 7.

If a voter lives in the district but is not registered, he may sign an affadavit saying he is a qualified voter, Harbin said.

The bond issue, which will pay for the school and its furnishings, will not require a tax increase.

The school will be located at the intersection of Virginia and Twitty Streets, south of the high school.

A two-thirds majority is needed to approve the bond issue.

The board of education will announce the election at least 15 days before the election.

11 Hurt In Accidents

Eleven persons were injured in seven traffic accidents on area roads and highways Friday and early today, according to the highway patrol.

A two-car accident at 1:25 a.m. today on Highway 67 two miles south of Fredericktown resulted in injuries to Michael Pigg, 21, of Lemay. He was taken to Madison County Memorial Hospital in Fredericktown with cuts of the lip.

The accident occurred when a car driven by William Leroy Pickert, 21, of Mill Creek ran off the road, then slid back across the center line into the path of the Pigg auto.

Buddy Lee Fears, 27, of Charleston received chin and arm cuts Friday when his truck, traveling at a high rate of speed, ran off the road, struck a building and sideswiped a utility pole. The accident took place at 11:45 a.m. on Highway 62 in Bertrand.

Three persons were injured in an accident at 10:45 a.m. Friday on Highway 77 three miles north of Diehlstadt.

Injured was Thomas Graham, 22, of Charleston, chest and facial cuts and scratches; Verl Lintner, 66, of Unionville, possible broken ribs and chest injuries; and Marie Lintner, 61, of Unionville, facial cuts. All were taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston.

The accident occurred when the car driven by Litner rounded a curve and skidded on wet pavement into the path of the car driven by Graham.

A one-car accident Friday at 3:30 p.m. on 61 two miles south of Steele resulted in injuries to three passengers. Clarence Royston, 21, of St. Louis, received facial cuts and back injuries; May Davis, 57, of St. Louis, facial cuts and cuts to arm; and Ella Davis, 89, facial cuts. They were taken to Pemiscot County Memorial Hospital in Hayti.

The accident occurred when the driver of the car, Ozella Davis, 39, of St. Louis lost control on wet pavement, ran off the road and struck a dirt driveway.

Leona Massey, 51, of Charleston received possible back and neck injuries in an accident Friday at 10:10 p.m. on Highway 62 three miles west of Charleston. She was taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston.

The accident occurred when the Massey car slowed or stopped and was struck in the rear by a car driven by Otis Davidson, 68, of Sikeston.

A one-car accident at 12:15 a.m. today on Highway 25 one-half mile south of Delta resulted in serious injuries to the driver, Charles Sheffer, 21, of Bloomfield. He sustained a fractured right jaw, fractured right arm and right leg, sever head cuts and chest injuries. He was taken to Southeast Missouri Hospital in Cape Girardeau.

Traveling at a high rate of speed, Sheffer's car left the road, ran down the shoulder and struck a bridge.

At 7 p.m. Friday on a country road six miles east of Puxico, Michael Rogers, 30, of Puxico received spinal injuries, was taken to Memorial Dexter Hospital and was transferred to St. Luke's Hospital in St. Louis.

The accident occurred when a car driven by William Rainey, 18, of Puxico Route Two ran into the rear of a parked car owned by Billy Bryant, 42, of Puxico just as Rogers was getting into the passengers' side of the auto.

3 IRA Commanders Captured By British

BELFAST (AP) — Three Irish Republican Army commanders, including a top marksman, were captured by British troops in Belfast and Londonderry Friday, the army said.

An army spokesman said a patrol grabbed Jim "Doc" Doherty, 21, operations officer for the IRA's Provisional wing in Londonderry's Creggan district.

The army refused to identify the two other high-ranking Provisionals, both captured in Belfast, but security sources reported they were company commanders from two IRA battalions.

3rd District Poll Puts Dowd In Slight Lead

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Voters questioned in the 3rd Congressional District including south St. Louis and three adjoining townships gave Democrat Edward L. Dowd a slim lead over Republican Christopher "Kit" Bond in the campaign for governor.

Results were published in today's St. Louis Globe-Democrat and Kansas City Star. The two papers questioned 1,116 voters in south St. Louis and Gravois, Concord and Lemay townships.

Dowd's over-all lead was 4.7 per cent. He had 49 per cent support to 44.3 per cent for Bond with the rest undecided. In his home area of St. Louis he was ahead by 14.1 per cent.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

To people past 50, the idea of a good time is to keep well.

* * *

"Between now and election," observes the National Association of Manufacturers, "candidates and incumbents in public office will be offering solutions to all our problems -- except one -- who is to pay the bill? Somewhat as in the game of musical chairs, the bill is passed around until the music stops, and who's left standing alonge and holding the tab? You're right. It's you and I -- the taxpayer. When the aspirants talk about closing the so-called tax loopholes, consider this. These 'loopholes' turn out to be such things as taxfree interest on municipal bonds (to help keep local taxes down), or the oil depletion allowance (which encourages exploration to keep gas and oil from becoming scarce and more expensive), or the deductions which we take for interest on our home mortgage, medical costs and charitable contributions. So when you hear how this or that will be done say: Who is going to pay for it? Chances are that one way or another, the truthful answer would be: 'You will'."

Since 1968, the date of the last presidential election, the population of voting -age showed a net increase of 19.4 million, reaching a total of 140 million persons in November, 1972. This represents a 16.1 per cent increase in the voting - age population during the four-year period. This unusually large increase came about by the addition of nearly 11 million new potential voters as a result of lowering the voting age to age 18 and by the large number of persons reaching their majority since the 1968 election.

Nearly 61 per cent or 73 million person of voting age cast votes for President electors in the 1968 election. If the same per cent casts votes for President in 1972 as in 1968, about 85 million voters would be expected to go to the polls this November.

As election time approaches, those letters from some Congressmen to constituents at home are beginning to flood the mails. And if the letter from our member in the House of Representatives is typical, their theme helps to explain why we have inflation, why prices keep rising and why the average family can expect to have a tougher time of making ends meet. That theme is simply to get as much as possible from the federal treasury for hometown projects.

Some of the campaign materials we've seen listed some of the appropriations he'd helped obtain for the district. Each program or appropriation is directed toward a certain group of voters. Nothing is said about the stern need for economy in government spending or the danger of inflation to the savings and earnings of every citizen in the country.

Apparently, these spenders in Congress were deaf to the remark of George P. Shultz, U. S. Treasury Secretary, who recently commented, "Do we have the guts in this country to exercise discipline over how much we spend so that we won't have to raise taxes or endure further inflation? That is the battle, the struggle that is going on right now."

That's why President Nixon must veto the reckless spending bills from a majority in Congress who perpetuate themselves in office by buying votes. It's time for a change -- or we will be up the creek without a paddle one of these days.

Frank Ferrell Mayor of Sikeston, contends a politician is someone who doesn't permit the facts to influence his judgment.

* * *

Since World War II over thirty years ago when "war taxes" were temporarily added as part of the taxpayer's patriotic duty, we've observed that Congress has never been unduly concerned about where the money is to come from to meet politically - motivated and expanding social programs. That is why staggering deficits pile up each year, and inflation has become a way of life that threatens the security, the savings and the standard of living of every American.

But, if we read the signs right, a growing number of these citizens do not like this trend and congressional candidates are beginning to find rough-sledding this election year, especially those running for re-election.

The comment of an Iowa editor is typical: "Now I'd like to ask some of those members of Congress who vote for these programs how those of us who are footing the bill are supposed to increase our income by the same percentage so that we can afford the raise of 20 per cent in Social Security and other tax increases. Most of us are going to get poor to be able to give somebody else a better standard of living. I say again, I don't mind those people getting more. What I wish would happen is that the government would find a way to heave out some of their costly nonproductive departments and switch some of that money to social security ... It would help considerably if there were a little belt-tightening and efficiency at the top rather than always from the ground up."

Congressmen whose salaries are now higher then the incomes of most taxpayers and whose prerogatives of office have grown immensely seem to have lost touch with the problems of the common man -- to whom they profess allegiance when they ask for votes.

A GOOD PUBLIC SERVANT

James C. Kirkpatrick is seeking reelection as Missouri's Secretary of State -- and it couldn't happen to a nicer guy. We are prejudiced in his favor because we have known him for many years and because he is a fellow newspaperman -- owner of the Windsor, Mo., Review, now edited by his son, Don. But beyond all that, the conduct of his office has been such that he deserves to be reelected.

The opportunity for error of omission and commission and even for venality is ever present in the Secretary of State's office, but never once has any shadow been cast over Jimmy Kirkpatrick's administration of that office.

He has instigated election reforms which protect the integrity of the ballot, makes voting as simple and convenient as possible and makes elections as economical as possible for the taxpayers.

Mr. Kirkpatrick has modernized the corporations divisions to provide prompt, efficient information on the 70,000 corporations doing business in Missouri. In the securities division, Kirkpatrick has expanded and improved the division in order to assure more protection to Missouri investors in stocks, bonds and investments.

In many other areas Kirkpatrick has been cited for his efficient reorganization to expand services, yet reduce space and costs. During the past fiscal year Kirkpatrick's operation has returned to the state treasury almost $2.50 for every dollar it cost to operate.

Banks, savings associations, lawyers and many in commercial fields have benefitted by Kirkpatrick's efficient operation of his office. He has provided them faster service in a more efficient manner.

Secretary Kirkpatrick has said, "I have the best job in state government and I get a real thrill out of trying to do it as well as possible. I am seeking reelection to finish the job I have started-- to improve the secretary of state's office to give the best service at the lowest cost possible."

We like Kirkpatrick as an individual, and have for many years, but we also like him for concept of public service and the way in which he lives up to his concept.

Few Missourians, if any, are better or more widely known across the state than Jimmy. His friends are legion and, in our opinion they will see that he is reelected in the fall.

We happily encourage you to vote for Jimmy Kirkpatrick for Secretary of State.

REPEAT AS NEEDED

A gentleman pushing a car containing a screaming baby through a large supermarket was overheard by most of the patrons of the store as he softly repeated two phrases, "Keep calm, boy," and "don't get excited, Mike."

A lady remarked as she pushed her cart next to his, "My goodness, it's nice of you to do the shopping for your family and mind the baby at the same time, but don't you think that you could do more than just comfort little Mike with those phrases?"

"Lady," replied the harried man soberly, "I'm Mike."

The causes of this improvement are many — sanitation and epidemic control; medical attention; less hard physical labor; and adequate food, with nutrition the important factor. Even if all other conditions are favorable, nutrient deficiencies could cause deaths, and it's not eating more food that counts but the higher nutrient quality of it.

As for organic foods, the United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association reports that "most food alleged to be grown completely without chemicals is mislabeled ... there is no such thing as an "organic grown" plant. Plants utilize water soluble inorganic ions, not organic compounds. They cannot use natural fertilizer until soil organisms break it down to inorganic elements. Foods passed off as "naturally grown" are often inferior in spite of a higher price tag.

A CATALOGUE AND THE RICH

One of the popular myths of our society is that rich people tend to be smarter than poor people. There's very little evidence to support the claim.

Consider the facts:

Rich people run the railroads — and the railroads don't work.

Rich people run the cities — and the cities don't work.

Rich people run the federal government — and that doesn't work either.

As a matter of fact, there's very little in our society that works. About the last really workable invention to come down the pike was the Zippo lighter, and rich people don't use them.

The general ineptitude of the rich is illustrated with even greater clarity by the current Christmas catalogue of Neiman- Marcus.

Neiman- Marcus, in case you haven't heard, is a department store chain based in Dallas, Tex., that caters to the rich. Its catalogue features such items as a $150,000 emerald ring, $42,000 sable coats, and a $32,000 jet-powered sailplane.

These items are okay, one expects to pay a few bob for emeralds, sables, and planes that go swish in the night. But get this Neiman - Marcus also offers life-size, made-to-order effigies of people for $3,000 a crack.

I mean, you call them up and say, "I'd like a lifesize statue of my wife to keep me company while she's on shopping trips," and they send a sculptor over to design a manequin that looks like her.

The statue comes equipped with a button which, when pressed, causes the statue to laugh or say yes, whichever you choose. $3,000 (plus the air fare of the sculptor).

Now, can you imagine going up to a steel worker in Gary, Ind., and saying: "Hey buddy! How would you like a statue of your wife that laughs or says yes when you press a button? Only $3,000."

He's say, "How would you like a broken jaw?"

Dip into the catalogue anywhere. In the "At Home" section they feature a stunning little t-shirt for only $21. A few pages on, you can buy a pair of "shoe mittens" to protect your shoes for $6.50 a pair.

The mittens don't do anything a pair of 98 -cent sweat socks won't do, but rich people like getting ripped off.

Neiman-Marcus also sells pieces of wood to brace against doors so that burglars cannot burgle. The tab for the 9-by-29-inch slab is $12.

Can you imagine the most ignorant sharecropper in the meanest section of southern Louisiana being cheated like that? Sharecroppers aren't that dumb.

The catalogue features goodies for the kids, too. A 1/8 scale, gas-powered train with 250 feet of track ($2,500), and a 15-page coloring book with Swiss crayons and West German water colors ($10).

The suspicion grows that the Pentagon is run by subcribers to the Neiman - Marcus Christmas book — rich people.

A Pentagon buyer goes to an aircraft manufacturer and says: "What do you have in bombers?"

And the manufacturer says, "Here's a sporty little number with sweptback wings that I can put in your hanger for only $2 billion."

"Oh, boy," the buyer exclaims. "Sweptback wings. How fast will it fly?"

"Flying costs extra," the manufacturer says.

"Never mind, wrap it up. I love sweptback wings."

Maybe the way to get this country back on the right track is to get rich people out of the driver's seat.

Put a limit of ... say ... $50,000 on the net worth of elected officials. Pay congressmen a salary of $12,500 and the president $15,000. Give the vice-resident a salary commensurate with his duties, $4,500.

You'd see a different kind of government.

Smarter, undoubtedly.

The critic gave it several moments of deep thought. "Well, yes," he said at last, "I guess I can. He's the only fellow I know who can be the life of a party by not coming to it."

HOW TO TRIM INSURANCE COSTS

Contrary to popular belief, decisions of car owners can have much to do with the level of auto insurance rates. A release from the American Mutual Insurance Alliance contains motorist tips for holding down rates. It says, "Every motorist has a hand in determining how much he pays for his automobile insurance. His performance as a driver, where and how he uses his car, the kind of car he drives, where he lives, the ages of the people driving his car, and the insurance coverages he buys all have a bearing on his insurance rates."

The release offers a number of suggestions to car owners. It advises them to check with insurance men before changing cars. Premiums are higher for some high performance cars. Some companies are rating cars for damageability. Buyers of similarly priced cars with different repair records could end up paying collision premiums that differ by as much as 40 per cent a year. Premiums on some cars are higher, because they are targets for auto thieves. If a person owns more than one car, he sould insure all of them with the same insurer. Most companies offer a discount for multiple policies in the same family.

Numerous other suggestions to cut insurance costs are included in the release, but these are sufficient to show that auto insurance premiums, to a substantial degree, are based upon the discretionary choice of car owners. This is an important factor to consider in today's over-all high cost of owning and operating a motor vehicle.

RUSSIA AND GRAIN

Rumors have persisted for some time that the Russians are in serious trouble. Now the news media is beginning to document those rumors. The people of the Soviet Union are running out of grain and the other staple commodities of life. Grain is hard to come by in that vast communist country. Potatoes and other vegetables the Russian people rely on so heavily are also in short supply.

No one in his right mind wants to see people starve. Yet no citizen of the United States of America wants to see our soldiers, sailors and airmen killed by Russian weapons. That is exactly what has been happening in Vietnam for many years. It also happened in Korea. Now our government has made trade deals with the Kremlin under which the Soviets will purchase $750 million worth of grain from this country. This deal is rather perplexing in view of the damage the Russians have done to us in foreign affairs and through internal sabotage.

The Russians government blames the grain shortage on drought conditions and this is possibly true. The United States, on the other hand, has experienced severe droughts this year. We did have a surplus of wheat, however. One wonders how long the surplus will last if we supply the population of the Soviet Union.

The leaders of this nation should think about the U. S. first. If grain is sent to Russia, we should demand a heavy price for it, like the release of prisoners in Vietnam and the end of the war on a fair basis. We held the trump card. It looks like we did not use it.

Inside Labor

Whose Command Post? McGovern Pledges Militant Labor Chiefs White House Support in '73 Massive Negotiations

WASHINGTON — During a start- stop- speak- start political sweep the other day, Richard Nixon spotted a huge crane at a shopping center along the highway. On it was a huge sign proclaiming the Teamsters and construction unions for the President's reelection. Mighty pleased, he stopped.

A few days earlier Nelson Rockefeller's aides had asked the White House for a list of must- invitees to the governor's reception for the President at his famed, lush Pocantico Hills estate. On the White House list were the names of a powerful Teamsters' chief, powerful construction union leaders, and Longshoremen's president Teddy Gleason.

Later in the week, in the White House, one of the tiny group of advisers with immediate- access- to- the- President status observed that no new Secretary of Labor, or any official of consequence in this vast sector on the domestic front, would be appointed without the approval of Teamsters' leader Frank Fitzsimmons and AFL-CIO chief George Meany.

That is, of course, if Richard Nixon is reelected. Should it become "President" McGovern, "Reuther- ism" would replace the more traditional Fitzsimmons-Meany- ism. For if the Dakotan wins, he will name United Auto Workers (UAW) militant president, Leonard Woodcock, Secretary of Labor — or someone the auto union chief designates as his surrogate. That's the word from one of the most authoritative of the McGovern interlocking inner circles.

For McGovern this would mean doing what comes naturally. Most have forgotten that, until the final hours of the Democratic National Convention, McGovern's managers, then in full and cool possession and control, insisted that Woodcock would be the Vice Presidential candidate. That was to offset Meany's holy war against the Dakotan.

And it has rarely been reported that Bill Dodds, the auto union's skilled veteran Washington lobbyist, was swiftly named executive director of the Democratic National Committee. That was to offset Meany's neutrality and supply the Democrats with as much instant political machinery and expertise as possible to offset the anticipated massive labor defection.

All this is one of the most significant by- plays of this lusterless campaign. Few realize the importance of the Secretary of Labor post. Few realize that the "bread" of America, all Americans, all professionals, management, corporate executives, and white and blue collar workers, is sharply affected by the powers in the Labor Secretary's hands. Whoever he is, should he want to move hard and tough with the backing of the President, he can crush a business, an industry, or a union -- or make a powerful national figure out of any labor leader he chooses.

And in '73 and '74 this becomes triply meaningful. There's been some reporting of the upcoming labor- management negotiations - which could shake this nation, which could escalate inflation, which could unleash waves of strikes. Some have mentioned the coming (September) auto contract expiration confrontation between Woodcock's union and the whole industry.

But nowhere can I find warning of the simultaneous expiration of all 14 national railroad labor agreements midnight, June 30, 1973. This is the first such common expiration date in rail history.

This could heat up a summer already expected to be one of the hottest in recent decades.

Should George McGovern get in, wage and price controls go out. Recently Sargent Shriver laid it on the line when he said: "We're going to dump that Pay Board when we get in office." McGovern constantly has said he'd wipe it out along with the Cost of Living Council.

And there's no doubt of McGovern's loyalty to the big auto union which has been providing not only expertise but a pulsating political machine developed by the late Walter Reuther during the frenetic '40s.

Again, Shriver laid it on the line to an Auto Workers' gathering:

"Whether you like the way George McGovern looks, or whether you like the way I talk, remember that in 1973 labor will be involved in negotiations again; in 1976 labor will be involved in negotiations. The man in the White House can either be friendly, open and dispassionate to your interests or he can be Richard Nixon -- against your interests."

The inference is as obvious as the attack on Dick Nixon. Shriver here pledged White House support of the auto union's demands in a critical confrontation -- the nature of which can be seen in the shrewd hit- and- run strikes with which the UAW is hitting General Motors central supply system's strategic plants.

Thus, should Woodcock become the White House's house labor leader, he will carry in with him some sort of coalititon or alliance of unions resembling the old Congress of Industrial Organization (CIO) which was launched by massive rolling demonstrations and plant seizures coupled with political action. Woodcock basically is a Fabian Socialist. Reuther talked like one but bargained like an old-fashioned business agent.

Should Dick Nixon win, and "Fitz" and Meany stay in the fold, they will become to the Republican party what Old King Coal, the late John L. Lewis (in the beginning), and the militant unions were to Franklin Roosevelt and his successors for 40 years. And with the exception of the Eisenhower years -- this combine won for 40 years. And actually, the record shows that Ike was not really an exception.

And Dick Nixon believes he can turn his new combine into the "new majority."

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON-- The story of Mrs. Harry Merica of Naked Creek, Va., is a story of how America's bureaucracy can neglect the people it is supposed to serve.

Mrs. Merica is a spunky, mountain woman in her late 40s. When Hurricane Agnes ripped through Naked Creek last summer, the floods wiped out a wooden footbridge that connected Naked Creek to the outside world.

Mrs. Merica was the hardest hit. She was forced to carry her two disabled children on her back every day across a small, makeshift bridge which had been hastily constructed upstream. Mrs. Merica made this dangerous trek so her children could catch the school bus on highway 609 across the creek from her home.

After two months of this, Virginia officials finally heard about Mrs. Merica's plight.

Unfortunately, the state didn't fix the original footbridge or begin construction of a badly needed concrete highway bridge. Instead, incredibly, the state took the two children away from the despairing Mrs. Merica.

Both children are handicapped with muscular dystrophy. The Virginia State Nursing Home in Charlottesville, with typical bureaucratic reasoning, concluded that a safe bridge across the creek was essential to the children's welfare and, therefore, that Mrs. Merica did not provide a proper home for her children.

Of course, it's up to the government, not Mrs. Merica, to provide the bridge. But for seven years, we are told, state and local authorities have squabbled over who should build it.

Mrs. Merica's local minister George Shivers is trying to persuade federal authorities to act. He has talked to Virginia's Sen. Harry Byrd and to the Transportation Department. But so far no solution is in sight.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Merica's neighbors continue to shake their heads. Their attitude toward the government was expressed by one neighbor, who told us laconically: "The government doesn't make the rain. It doesn't make the sun. It doesn't grow my farm. And it doesn't affect me."

Despite a federal court ruling that nursing home files should be open to the public, Social Security Commissioner Robert Ball has brazenly suppressed information on the quality of nursing homes where many older Americans spend their last years.

It's common knowledge in the health industry that some of these facilities are unsanitary firetraps. This is information, obviously, that the public is entitled to know.

The 4,500 nursing homes that receive Medicare money must pass federal inspection. This usually isn't too difficult; routine approval is given if the homes are in "substantial compliance" with federal standards.

The nursing home inspection reports, however, are never released. The taxpayers, who paid for the inspections, can't find out which homes are safe and clean.

For three years, an enterprising investigative reporter, Mal Schechter, has battled with Social Security to gain access to inspection reports on nursing homes, hositals and clinical laboratories.

He bumped into a brick wall at Social Security. So Schechter enlisted the help of a Ralph Nader attorney, Ron Plesser, and filed suit under the Freedom of Information Act. They argued that an old Social Security law, which protects the privacy of individuals, shouldn't be used to hide nursing home deficiencies.

Federal Judge Joseph C. Waddy agreed and ordered the release of 15 reports requested by Schechter. Reporters assumed this settled their right to nursing home information. But they didn't reckon with the willy ways of the bureaucrats.

Commissioner Bell has chosen to interpret Judge Waddy's decision as an order to release only the specific reports requested by Schechter. If reporters want to see other inspection records, they, too, must go to court.

This amazing cover- up policy has been put in writing. "The Department of Health, Education and Welfare, in responding to future requests for disclosures of similar documents, will be guided by its present regulations prohibiting disclosure," states the directive.

"This means that, for the present, the Department of Justice will oppose any further efforts to obtain court orders for the disclosure of nursing home survey reports that have already been prepared."

Footnote: A Social Security spokesman candidly admitted that the agency is treading water to see what happens. They note that a case similar to Schechter's is pending before federal court in northern California and they hope it will be decided in their favor. They also point out that a bill governing access to their records recently passed Congress. The new law, however, will open the records at some future date and wouldn't permit public access to reports of previous inspections.

Viet Cong Pledge To Respect All Provisions Of Treaty

SAIGON (AP) — The Viet Cong pledged today to "absolutely respect and carry out all provisions" of the Paris peace agreement worked out by the United States and North Vietnam, and declared there would be "no liquidation" of opposing forces in South Vietnam.

At the same time, President Nguyen Van Thieu placed South Vietnam's armed forces on a general alert as Communist troops launched a land-grab drive in anticipation of the cease-fire going into effect soon, allied officials said.

Reports circulated in Washington, meanwhile, that presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger's departure for Paris was imminent. There were indications that a new session between Kissinger and the North Vietnamese could come as early as this weekend. But White House press secretary Ronald Ziegler said: "As in the past, we will announce further meetings" when they occur.

In its first official statement on the peace package, the Viet Cong's Liberation Radio said responsible Viet Cong representatives "will immediately conduct negotiations with the present Saigon administration to settle in concert together the internal problems of South Vietnam.

"These will be settled on the basis of equality, mutual respect, and nonliquidation of each other.

"We have every good will attitude necessary to end the war, restore peace, eradicate all hatred and anger, realize national concord, and together heal our war wounds, unite with each other, love and care for each other, and to live together in happiness and prosperity."

The pledge to abide by the terms of the Paris agreement came at the end of a long statement that started with a declaration that the United States must sign the pact if it wanted an end to the Vietnam war. The statement also accused both Saigon and Washington of "treacherous maneuvers threatening the entire question of peace in Vietnam," and said unless the agreement was signed by Tuesday, military attacks in South Vietnam would be intensified.

Sources said Communist command documents captured in the Saigon region had ordered Viet Cong troops to divide into small groups and infiltrate into hamlets and villages with the purpose of setting up propaganda machinery for a ceasefire, harassing government troops and establishing a Viet Cong presence.

Across South Vietnam, Communist troops carried out more than 100 shelling and terror attacks for the third successive day, the Saigon command said, the most since the 1968 Tet offensive.

The Da Nang area was shelled before dawn for the second time in four days. Nearly 30 rockets hit in and around the air base.

In Washington, meanwhile, Nixon administration officials were maintaining confidence about an approaching settlement, saying they expect clashing public statements from each party as negotiating reached a climax.

That stance was repeated Friday as Hanoi kept up its insistence that the agreement, which calls for a cease-fire in place and withdrawal of U.S. forces and release of prisoners of war within 60 days, be signed by Tuesday.

A North Vietnamese spokesman in Paris, Nguyen Thanh Le, told newsmen Hanoi negotiators would be willing to meet with Kissinger again, but said there were no remaining questions to be resolved before the agreement was signed.

Announcing on Thursday that "peace is at hand," Kissinger said about six or seven issues remained to be settled. But he added he thought they could be cleared up with another negotiating session and left it to Hanoi to set a date.

Administration officials indicated they had yet to receive a signal from Hanoi, saying they did not take Le's statement as the official North Vietnamese position.

Also on Friday, President Nixon met in Washington with visiting Laotian Premier Souvanna Phouma and the Laotian leader afterwards voiced hope the U.S.-North Vietnamese negotiations would produce a final accord.

In another Washington development, Pentagon officials said a quick Vietnam peace settlement does not mean there will be a "dramatic reduction" in this year's defense budget. A spokesman said military stocks used to counter North Vietnam's spring offensive would have to be replaced and funds also would be needed to cover withdrawal costs.

Fines Assessed In Bloomfield Court

BLOOMFIELD — In the absence of Judge Koss W. Blomeyer, Prosecuting Attorney Paul McGhee assessed fines in Magistrate Court Thursday morning.

Luther S. Hamilton of Parma pleaded guilty to a charge of careless and imprudent driving and was fined $15 and court costs.

Marvin David Lafferty of Bloomfield, charged with possession of intoxicating liquor by a minor, pleaded guilty and was fined $50 and court costs.

Edwin Dewayne Robinson of Advance pleaded guilty to the charge of possession of intoxicating liquor by a minor and was fined $50 and court costs.

Dale Lee McClanahan of Dexter pleaded guilty to the charge of public intoxication and was fined $10 and court costs.

Norman Richard Cruse of Essex pleaded guilty to a charge of driving while intoxicated and improper vehicle registration and was fined $110 and costs.

David Taylor, charged with possession of intoxicating liquor by a minor, pleaded guilty and was fined $50 and costs.

Richard Lee Deason pleaded guilty to a charge of passing in face of oncoming traffic and was fined $15 and costs.

Robert Lee Johnson of Essex, charged with careless and imprudent driving, pleaded guilty and was fined $15 and costs.

Those paying speeding fines and court costs were John Reynolds, $25, and Howard R. Painter of Sikeston, $10.

POW Wives Take Wait And See Stand

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (AP) — The wives and children of the men who are being held prisoner in North Vietnam now are talking about the two things they considerable inseparable — peace and politics.

"Isn't it strange," said Charlotte Christian, whose husband has been a POW for seven years, "how all the wives are saying, even with the prospect of a cease-fire near, 'let's wait and see.'

"Not one of them is trusting," she added in an interview, referring to the aprroximately 21 women in this coastal town with its nearby Naval base, whose husbands are among America's more than 1,500 prisoners or those missing in action.

Mrs. Christian, whose 32year-old husband, Cmdr. Michael D. Christian was shot down in April 1967, said:

"Even if the cease-fire is signed Tuesday, you won't find any one of us making plans for our husband's homecoming. We just don't want to be let down any more. I'm sorry it has taken so long," she said. "Sorry we had to sit and wait until the end of President Nixon's term of office.

I don't think Nixon needs this to be elected. But maybe he needs peace in order to be elected president with the greatest majority ever..."

"But," she added,"if he can't pull it (the cease-fire) off, he's going to have to come to my house and tell my children."

Only the oldest of their three children, 13-year-old Debbie, really remembers her father.

Mrs. Christian says she hasn't decided how she will vote in the presidential election.

"When I get into that booth to vote, I'll vote for whoever has helped the POWs the most. This may be selfish, but I feel the government has forced me into being selfish."

Veterans Hospital patients received a surprise gift on Veterans Day when they were given $1.00 bills by the American War Mothers. The organization calls this their "Christmas in October" for the patients. Several Chapters from the area served by the Poplar Bluff VA Hospital donated the money, which was given to the patients by ladies of the Hawthrone Chapter from Poplar Bluff. Claudie G. Sloan, a recently discharged Army Veteran from Sikeston, Mo., is shown receiving his gift. Thief Makes Heavy Haul

MOREHOUSE — Dickerson Laundromat in Morehouse was robbed of about $90 in quarters Thursday night.

The money was taken from two dryers. City Marshal Slim Rodgers said keys were apparently used to open the dryers.

Report One Arrested

CHARLESTON — Police reported today the arrest of Cleon Henry Milton, 24, of East Prairie on a charge of driving while intoxicated. He is scheduled to appear in City Court Monday.

Charges Filed Against Smith

CHARLESTON — Charges of breaking, entering and stealing were filed Friday afternoon against Sylvester Smith, 21, Jessie Hull, 19, and a juvenile, all of Charleston in connection with the break- in early Friday morning of Stader's Laundromat on East Marshall Street.

Approximately $34 was stolen from coin- operated machines. A $250 machine was damaged beyond repair and a soap machine was damaged.

Smith and Hull will appear before Magistrate T. J. Brown Jr. Thursday. Bond has been set at $1,500 each.

CONGRESSMAN Bill D. Burlison receives an appreciation plaque from Miss Gayla Henson of Cape Girardeau, a member of the "Exploring Club" this morning at Holiday Inn.

Burlison Recieves Appreciation Plaque From Exploring Club

An appreciation plaque was presented to Rep. Bill D. Burlison, 10th District Congressman from Cape Girardeau, by members of the Exploring Club at Holiday Inn this morning during their annual banquet.

Burlison spoke to the club about leadership and its effects, which he said falls into two categories, vacational and community.

"Nothing makes a person more miserable than making a living at a job he doesn't like," Burlison said.

In closing, Burlison told club members to work hard at their projects, and, in the outcome, they will be satisfied with themselves.

Ken Myles of Cape Girardeau, vice chairman of the Exploring Club said that the main purpose of the club is to help members study careers in which they are interested.

Sixty Dead In French Air Crash

CLERMONT-FERRAND, France (AP) — Sixty persons were killed Friday night when a domestic French airliner with 68 aboard crashed into a wooded hill in Central France and burst into pieces, authorities said.

All five crew members perished. Everyone aboard was believed to be French.

There was no explosion or fire.

The eight survivors, who included a five- year- old boy, were carried by stretcher to tractors and taken to ambulances parked on a road.

Rescue efforts were blocked for two hours when a boulder rolled onto the forest trail and blocked movement of the tractors. The survivors were hospitalized but initial reports indicated none was in danger.

The four- engine turboprop, a British- made Vickers Viscount, was owned by Air- Inter. It was en route from Lyon to Clermont-Ferrand.

Ground stations lost radio contact with the plane about 10 minutes before it was due to land.

Airport authorities at Clermont said the Viscount flew over the airport and then, with radio contact cut, made a complete turnabout for unknown reasons.

Rescue teams, including the National Police, cut through dense forest to reach the wreckage.

One of the survivors, 55-year- old Marcel Delcroix, said he often flew from Lyon and "this time I had the impression that something was wrong. I told the young woman sitting alongside me. I felt the plane was going to crash. I undid my belt and was thrown out. I waited for help for about six hours."

Five- year- old Sylvain Montonnex fought back tears and repeatedly told rescuers that he wasn't hurt.

In another air disaster, five U.S. Air Force men from Ohio were killed Friday when an Air Force plane carshed in southern France en route to Athens, Greece.

The plane, a four- engine C119, was being delivered to Greece from Lockbourne Air Force Base in Ohio as part of the U.S. military assistance program. It crashed near the village of Aulen.

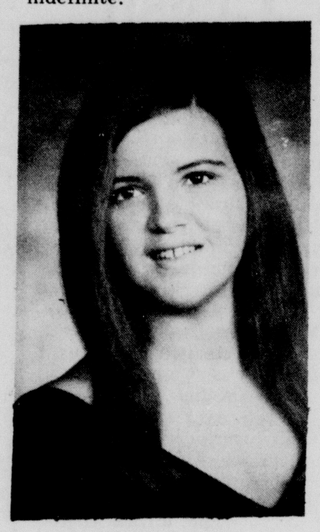
Eastep-Flippo

PORTAGEVILLE — Mrs. Jessie Champion announces the engagement of her daughter, Alice Jean Eastep, to Roy Franklin Flippo, son of Pat Flippo of Caruthersville.

Miss Eastep is a 1970 graduate of Portageville High School.

Flippo, a 1970 graduate of Caruthersville High School is employed at Crounce Corp. in Paducah, Ky.

Wedding plans are indefinite.



Regina Kelton

Kelton-Winders

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Kelton, 415 Crowe, announce the engagement of their daughter, Regina Kelton, to John Winders, son of Mr. and Mrs. Milford Winders of Bertrand Route One.

Miss Kelton is a senior at Sikeston High School. Winders, a 1969 graduate of Sikeston High School, is in the Navy aboard the ship USS Truxtun.

Wedding plans are incomplete.

White-Yant

Mr. and Mrs. Durwood White, 419 Matthews Ave., announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Barbara Jean, to David Ralph Yant, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Yant, 1709 Kentucky St.

Miss White is a senior at Sikeston High School and is an employe of Central Constructors.

Yant is a 1970 graduate of Sikeston High School and is presently stationed at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla.

A Jan. 6 wedding has been planned.

Presbyterian And 4-H Party Set

Members of the Sikeston 4-H Club and young people of the Presbyterian Church will meet from 6:30 to 9 p.m. for a Halloween Party tonight at Hunter Memorial First Presbyterian Church.

Children are asked to wear a costume representing a country. Prizes and refreshments will be presented.

Nazarene Youth Have Party

Fifty young ghosts, goblins, witches and all types of Halloween creatures met at First Church of the Nazarene at 6:30 p.m. Friday.

Erie music greeted each guest as members of the kindergarten and primary departments gathered for the party.

Prizes were awarded for the prettiest, ugliest and hardest to guess costumes.

Refreshments of cup cakes and punch were served.

Ann Landers

Parents Ask Only To Know Missing Children Are "O.K."

Dear Ann Landers: I am a woman of 50 with a very troubled mind and an unhappy husband. Ten years ago I had a complete hysterectomy. After the surgery I took hormone shots and the doctor said I would be fine. Well, Ann, I lost all desire for sex after that operation and my life has been far from fine.

My husband has done nothing but complain. He says it's all in my head. He went to my doctor and had a talk with him about my lack of interest in sexual relations. When my husband came home he said, "Well, the doctor backed me up. He says your physical condition is excellent and there is no reason why you can't be as good a bed partner as you were twenty years ago.

I don't know whose neck I'd like to wring first, my husband's or the doctor's. Please tell that sex maniac I am married to that it IS normal for a woman to lose interest in sex after this kind of operation.--- Winston- Salem

Dear Win: I'm afraid you're going to want to wring my neck, too. I can't tell your husband any such thing. I hope you will go back to your doctor and talk with him. It may be that you need a little counseling to help you get back on the track. The psychological effect of a hysterectomy may be responsible for your lack of interest, but there is no physical reason for it.

Dear Ann Landers: I know you are not running a Bureau For Missing Persons or a Bulletin Board For Broken Families, but I do hope you will print this letter for the benefit of the thousands of young people who left home and whose parents do not know where they are.

Please, Ann, tell these kids that if they would just drop a postcard or send a collect telegram or place a collect phone call, or have a friend who is passing through town, give us a two word message, "I'm O.K." it would make all the difference in the world.

To every runaway boy or girl who left without saying goodbye, I say this:

We would not insist that you come back, or even ask you to if you didn't want to. All we need to know is that you are alive and well. It would be like a ton of stone lifted from our hearts. Please let us hear from you soon.--- Mother and Dad

Here's the message-- and I hope and pray it provides the little shove that some of those kids need.

Dear Ann Landers: I had to laugh when I read that letter from the woman in Tucson who said cat- haters are not to be trusted-- that there is something sneaky and underhanded about them. The writer also went on to say a cat- lover should never marry a person who does not share his love for cats. She added, "Cat lovers should marry each other and they will have a good life together."

The reason I found this so funny is because my aunt and uncle were both cat lovers. They never had any children, but they had 11 cats in the house. When they traveled they hired a person to stay in their house and look after the cats. After 15 years of marriage they separated. The result was the bitterest divorce on record. . .and the biggest problem was settling the custody of the cats.

If one had been a cat lover and the other a cat hater it would have been easy. So it appears the advice from Tucson was wrong. At least it didn't work in Dayton.--- Witness To The Mess

Dear Wit: Thanks for my laugh for the day. I'm with you.

Is an upcoming wedding driving you bananas? Ann Landers' comprehensive booklet, "The Bride's Guide," gives you the facts from the initial announcement to the last bill and who should pay it.

Collins Judge For Band Day

FAYETTE — Keith Collins of Sikeston, piano store owner and retired high school band director, was one of four judges for the ninth annual Band Day today at Central Methodist College.

The event got under way at 9 a.m. with a special parade through the streets of Fayette, followed by field competition.

Trophies were to be presented just prior to kickoff of Central Methodist-Graceland College football game this afternoon, and the band with the most points will per form at halftime, along with the CMC Marching Eagles.

Twenty- two high school bands were to participate in three categories; small, medium and large.

Approximately 2,000 students were expected, along with more than 100 parents and chaperones. An estimated 50 buses were used to transport the bands to the CMC campus.

Keith House, director of bands of CMC, is in charge of this year's event.

KING MIDAS, portrayed by Edwin Child, right, is amazed as the mysterious Stranger, Dino Almond, gives him the "Magic Touch" in one of the scenes from the National Children's Theatre production of "King Midas and the Golden Touch". The famous classic Greek fable will be presented Monday at 4 p.m. at Central High School auditorium in Cape Girardeau by Delta Delta Delta alumna.

Delta Delta Presents "King Midas"

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Delta Delta Delta alumna are sponsoring "King Midas and the Golden Touch" Monday at 7 p.m.

The dramatization of the Greek legend is renowned for the magical, golden touch of King Midas, which causes many hilarious experiences and teaches a subtle lesson about the consequences of greed. Child will direct and play the role of the king.

A product of the National Children's Theatre of New York and Dallas, the play will be presented in the Central High School auditorium by a cast of professional actors directed by Edwin Child.

"Young Arthur and Merlin the Magician" are scheduled in January and "Hansel and Gretel" in April. All of the plays are scaled to child- level, and they especially appeal to children five through 13.

Tickets are available at the door, or by contacting Mrs. Timothy Ruddy, 1222 Normal, phone 334-5427; or Mrs. John Mark Scully, 444 Washington, phone 335-2990.

Season tickets are available for all three performances.

Fall Is Excellent , Liming Time

By JOHN GARRETT
Area Agronomy Specialist

Now is an excellent time to apply limestone for 1973 crops. Some people do not consider lime as part of their fertilizer program, but they should.

On many soils, the yield increase from fertilizer will depend on the pH. The term "pH" is used to denote the degree of acidity. The pH should be between 6.0 and 6.5 for optimum yield of most row crops grown in this area.

Yields are definitely being reduced on many soils with a pH of 5.5 or below. This is more critical on silt loam and sandy soils than on heavy clay soils.

If you have failed to keep your pH above 5.5, you're probably neither getting top yield nor top quality. Even though plenty of the essential nutrients are in the soil for top yields, they are fixed in the soil by complex chemical reactions and are not available. Aluminum, manganese and iron are much more available under acid conditions and generally reach toxic levels.

Agricultural lime does not correct acid soil conditions overnight. Lime should be applied six to 12 months before expecting results. If the pH is 4.5 or below, it will react sooner. Another reason farmers fail to get response the first year or two is improper mixing.

The best method of mixing is to plow one half of the lime down and disk the other in. Most of the time it is only disked and this only mixes lime 2 to 4 inches deep. Lime moves very slow in the soil, so if you don't break, don't expect the lime to correct the pH in the top seven inches for a couple of years.

Another reason for breaking the lime deep is to correct subsoil acidity. Generally subsoils are more acid than top soils. These acid subsoils reduce yields more than the top soil, especially in dry years. The only way to get lime deep is to plow it down with a moldboard plow with a big tractor. Chiseling will not get the job done.

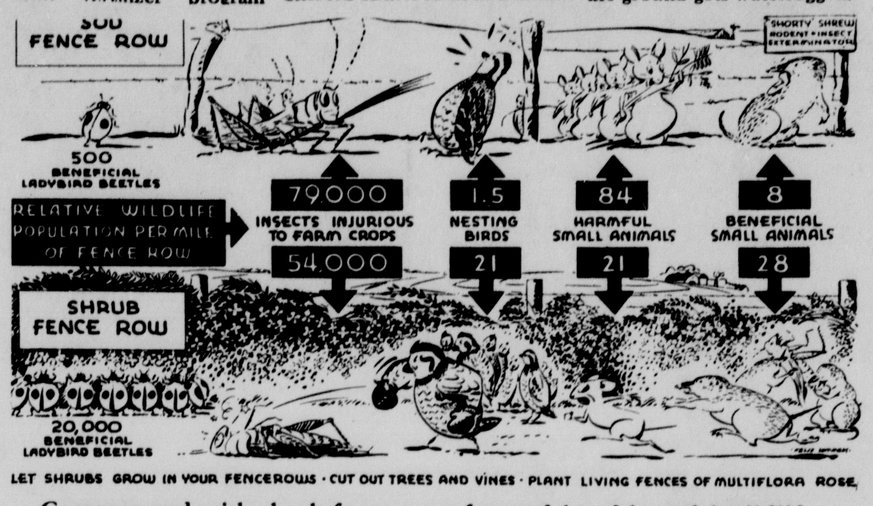
Fall is an excellent time for plowing and preparing mixed and gumbo soils for next spring crosp. If lime, phosphate or potash are needed they should be applied and plowed down this fall. Fall plowing will also help bury weed seeds and disease organisms.

Why have farmers failed to soil test and lime? It isn't the cost because a soil test only costs about 10 cents or less per acre. The soil is tested for phosphorus, potassium, calcium, magnesium, organic matter, pH and lime requirement. It will give you a nutrient inventory of your soil. You will find out from this test if your fertilizer program should be changed.

The biggest reason farmers fail to soil test is because they keep putting the job off until it is too late. After crops are harvested is an ideal time to get samples.

The best reason for liming is that it increases net profit where needed. Two tons of lime per acre were applied to a soil with a pH of 4.0 on the Clifford Klutts farm in Dunklin County. The no- lime part of the field made 23 bushels of soybeans per acre, and the limed part made 32 bushels per acre. Increases such as this are common on acid soils. In addition to correcting acidity, lime supplies calcium and magnesium and increases the effectiveness of fertilizers.

Don't put it off; soil test and apply recommended lime and fertilizer this fall before the ground gets waterlogged.



Compare sod with shrub fence rows for useful and harmful wildlife.

Mapping Gives Best Soil Use Per Acre

The purpose of every comprehensive farm conservation program is to develop a farming plan that makes maximum productive use of every acre. It lets you farm at top capacity with a minimum loss of soil and water.

Your soil conservation district will provide a map as the first of soil, slope, degree of erosion, fertility, and general physical condition of land everywhere on your farm. It'll classify your land according to its capability which you will use as a guide in deciding what it can do and how it should be operated.

A soil map shows the different soil associations. A soil association is a landscape that has a distinctive proportional pattern of soils.

A soil map is useful to everyone. To the developer, the construction worker, and the farmer. A soils map tells you what the soil association is and gives the person interested unlimited information about the soil.

A soils map tells you the hazards that may exist in a profile of the soil. It tells you the hazards present whether it be wetness, droughtiness or erosion problems. It also tells you the % of field slope, the type of soil and the degree of erosion that has already occurred. A soils map tells you the capability classification of a certain soil. There are eight classes of soil, class one being the best and class eight being the least desirable.

A soils map is the most important part in planning a farm. If you have need for an area to be mapped contact your Soil Conservation Service in Scott County.

Good Wildlife Management Needs Shrub Cover For Fence Rows

By JERRY T. HARLOW
District Conservationist

While no two kinds of wildlife have the same requirements for living, it is safe to say that all kinds need food, cover and water. To support a high wildlife population a farm must have a plentiful supply of good food close to cover that furnishes protection from enemies and weather. And it must be available in all seasons of the year.

Of three limiting factors food, cover and water - we can disregard water. Water is usually available in the form of moisture from berries, dew, or rain drops. Upland game does not require a supply of water as do big game species.

Cover should be in the form of live vegetation such as blackberry briers, autumn olive, sericea lespedeza, etc. Brushpiles are also good cover.

Food is probably the most important of factors. In our area there is enough food from late spring to fall, insects, wild-fruits, weed seeds, waste grain, nuts or green plants provide a good diet for small game.

The critical season is Winter, proper planning before winter arrives will yield great dividents. In most areas good food plots planted close to good cover will carry wildlife through critical periods.

Wildlife food plots and plantings are available through your Soil Conservation Service or Missouri Department of Conservation.

Families Eligible For Rural Housing Loans From FHA

Many additional families in Scott and Mississippi counties are now eligible for rural housing loans from Farmers Home Administration, FHA County Spuervisor Bobby R. Hicks reported today.

"In families where both husband and wife are employed and the wife is not the primary source of income, the change permits half the wife's gross income to be excluded in determining whether the total family income is within the maximum limit for loan eligiblity."

For example, if the husband's income is $6,000 and the wife earns $4,000, his entire income plus half his wife's income, or a total of $8,000 would be considered. This is within Missouri's moderate income level, so the family may be eligible for a loan.

Hicks stated this change was made in June, 1972, but not as many families have taken advantage of this change as was anticipated. Loans may be made to families who will buy or build homes in open country or towns of up to 10,000 population and who are not able to obtain credit from regular commercial sources.

Complete information is available from the FHA office in Sikeston, 106 E. Center St., on Monday mornings from 8 a.m. until noon.

Twenty acres of cabbages are now being harvested on the farm of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Myers and son, Larry, on Highway 25 south of Dexter. The Myers designed and built this platform which sits atop a tractor where the hand-cut cabbage is placed for grading and sacking. The cabbage is stacked on a higher platform until it is unloaded onto a truck at the end of the field. The Myers have 50 acres of cabbage on their 500-acre farm where they also raise wheat, corn, cotton and soybeans.

Soybean Outlook Good For Coming Year

By THOMAS A. BROWN JR.
Area Agronomy Specialist

BLOOMFIELD — Soybean prices are a matter of considerable concern and speculation among farmers in this area. A summary of a report - Outlook for Soybeans - released recently by extension agricultural economists at the University of Missouri - Columbia will probably be of interest to these people.

Soybean supplies for the next 12 months are expected to be approximately 120 million bushels above last year. A comparison of the indicated current supply situation compared to that of a year ago may be obtained as follows:

Production, 1971-72, 1,169 million bushes; 1972-73, million bushels estimated. carry over, 1971-72, 99, million bushels; 1972-73, 78 million bushels estimated; total supply, 1971-72, 1,268 million bushels, 1972-73, 1,378 million bushels estimated.

For the past three years, soybean consumption has been greater than production. Carryover is down to a very bare minimum which is also expected to be the case in September, 1973. This means that consumption during the next year will just about equal 1972 production. The reason - we simply do not have more beans to consume.

The yield improvement and increased acreage of beans harvested this year indicated in the estimated 1972 production in the above table will provide some much needed volume in an otherwise tight supply situation.

Export demand for soybeans has been strong in recent years and is expected to continue strong in 1973. Due to the previously mentioned increased supply, foreign markets are expected to continue to grow.

In addition to the 37 million bushel Russian purchase of soybeans announced last month, exports are expected to climb an addition 30 to 35 million bushels during the 1972-73 marketing year for a total of 485 million bushels.

Soybean crushings for the coming year are estimated to be about the same level as last year. While the demand for protein is strong, a weak oil market will dampen the demand for soybeans to some extent.

Soybean oil carryover is slightly higher than a year ago. This weakness in oil has placed a downward pressure on soybean prices causing soybean meal to be the strong factor in bean prices. This situation will continue into 1973.

Farm prices for soybeans are expected to be higher during the coming year. Bean prices at most country markets in Missouri, including Southeast Missouri rail points, are now in the $3.25 per bushel range. This would seem to sit the lower range of bean prices for the months ahead.

The upper range of prices will be established by any upward movement in oil and meal prices. Most soybean authorities are predicting that prices for the coming year will average about 10 per cent higher than last year.

This would mean that the yearly price would average in the neighborhood of $3.30 per bushel compared to the seasonal average price of slightly above $3 per bushel last year.

Indians Collar Dogs

JACKSON — The biggest puzzle in the second half of Friday night's football game was not figuring out who was winning. It was figuring out who carried the ball. The Jackson football field, not the best under normal conditions, was a quagmire after an afternoon of light rain and numbers were obliterated halfway into the first quarter.

Jackson scored a couple of touchdowns in the first half, while you could still see the yardlines, then held on for a miserable, muddy, 13-0 Northern Division win over the Sikeston Bulldogs.

It was homecoming for Jackson, and the fans stuck around for most of the ballgame, at least the Jackson fans did. But, most of the Sikeston fans were gone by the third quarter, or at least by early in the fourth as it became apparent that the slow, plodding offense of the Indians was going to consume so much time there would be no chance of catching up.

Although Sikeston ran more plays than Jackson, 42 to 40, Jackson dominated the second half. One time the Tribe held the ball for six minutes in the third quarter, only to have Sikeston hold on a crucial, fourth-down play on the Bulldog five-yard line. Sikeston did lose the war of the statistics, gaining just 145 yards to 256 for the Indians.

The main reason Sikeston lost was the absence of its passing attack. All year passing has carried Sikeston offensively. Now the Dogs finally go their running game going consistently and the passing game failed to click.

Conditions of the field completely shut off Sikeston's throwing game. Senior quarterback Bill Colwick was unable to complete any of three attempts. Two of the three were intercepted and the third was touched by three Jackson defensive backs before it fell incomplete.

The running attack took on a new light for the Bulldogs. Tight end John Farris was moved to one of the setback slots in order to add some beef to the backfield. Although the 190-pounder performed well, Sikeston's most consistent runner was speedster Curtis Bean. The senior tailback plowed through the deep mud, showing surprising power on his way to an even 100 yards rushing.

Considering the terrible conditions, it was easily the sprinter's finest night of the year. Except for a slight knee injury in the third period, the Sikeston tailback might have approached the 150 mark. He had 80 yards at half. Farris, although obviously new to the position, gave the Sikeston offense some badly needed straight-ahead power.

A couple of Sikeston players striving for school records were set back a notch.

Colwick is still 27 completions shy of a school record, a record he already holds. He is also 260 yards short of a record for passing yards. The record of 1,350 is presently held by Jerry Throgmorton.

Glen Guttenfelder was shut out in the contest. So, the mud accomplished something that even the great Cape Girardeau Central defensive backs couldn't do — hold the fleet split end without any catches. Guttenfelder has 35 receptions on the year, eight short of Steve Ferrell's record.

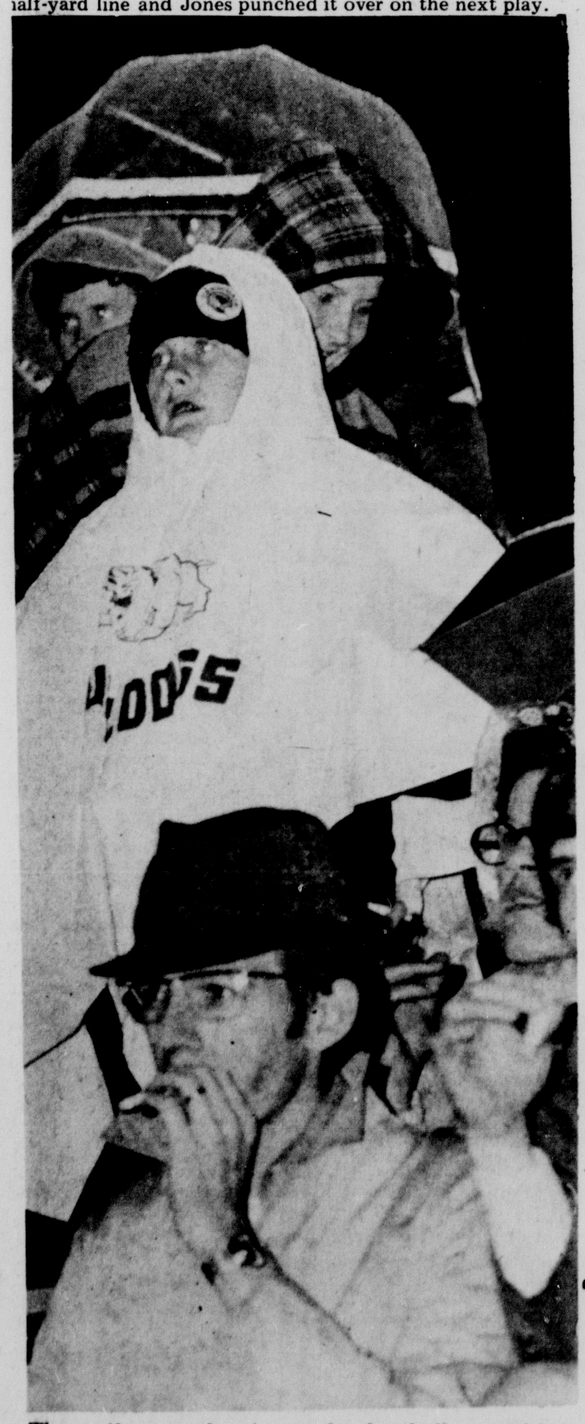
Sikeston kicked off to open the contest. Jackson was unable to move the ball and punted. Sikeston took the punt and, behind Bean's running, moved the ball to the Jackson 35. However, on fourth down, Colwick faded to pass and, just as he grew, was hit by a charging Jackson defensive lineman. The ball was jarred loose and Jackson recovered in good field position on Sikeston's side of the 50.

From there, Jackson moved the ball very well. The key play on the drive was a 16-yard pass from Mark Jones, the Jackson quarterback, to his favorite receiver, Terry Langston. On the very next play, Loren Sides sprinted 16 yards for the first score of the game.

The game's final touchdown came a few moments before halftime. With the field becoming unrecognizable, Jackson began to ram the ball down Sikeston's throat. The defense gave ground, but grudgingly.

All of a sudden, after passing just once before in the first half, Jones faded and threw a long pass toward Langston. The defensive back had Langston covered like a blanket, but pulled up short to try for the interception. The ball evaded his fingertips by inches and Langston made an outstanding catch.

The 38-yard bomb put the ball on the Sikeston half-yard line and Jones punched it over on the next play.



The rather cool rain made football- watching uncomfortable for some football fans, but Hal Butler, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Butler, did remember to bring along his official "Bulldog pancho" for some protection from the elements.

Panthers Prevail

By FRED COPELAND

PARMA — The Lilbourn Panthers relied on speed and a 28- point second quarter to roll to a 79-50 victory over Matthews in the championship clash of the Parma B-team tournament Friday night.

Lilbourn, capturing the title for the fourth consecutive year, opened a commanding 44-22 lead in the first half. In the third quarter, Lilbourn came out firing and again outscored the Pirates, 15-6. In the fourth quarter, the Matthews quintet finally began to find the range and outscored the Panthers, 22-20.

Lilbourn placed four men in double figures with Ernest McFerren, Herman Thompson and Detral Treadwell scoring 12 points each to lead the Panther attack and Johnny Ash adding 10. Ken Lape scored 16 and David Kennedy and Scotty Bewley collected 12 each to pace the Pirates.

In the consolation game, fans got a taste of excitement as the Pirates of parma won a squeaker, 55-53 over a stubborn Bernie quintet. The Pirates forged a 26-18 halftime lead and appeared ready to coast in to victory, but a fourth quarter rally by the Mules fell just short and kept the fans on the edge of their seats until the final buzzer.

Donny Thatch poured in 22 points to lead the Parma attack. Ricky Barnes and Clarence Office added 13 and 10 points respectively to help the host Pirates to victory. Bernie was paced by Ricky Moody with 19 and Joe Steuver with 12.

The scores:

PARMA (55)

Barnes 13, Ramsey 8, Kisk 2, Office 10, Donny Tatch 22. FG-23; FT-9; PF-14.

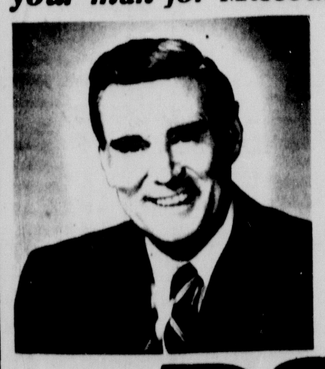
How Do YOU Feel About
Mental Health?

"One out of 10 Missourians are affected in some way by mental health problems . . . . it is vital that we speed up the great advances we have been making in mental health programs." That's how Ed Dowd feels about our mental health programs! He also says, "It is extremely important that those who work in our mental health programs be paid more adequate, competitive wages." If that's the way you feel about mental health , then Ed Dowd's your man for Missouri's Governor.



Sure, the people of Missouri want a change. But we all know a change for change's sake isn't the answer. The real answer lies with a mature man of Ed Dowd's unquestioned good character. The son and grandson of policemen . . . a father who understands . . . a man who didn't inherit a thing except an honest respect for the working man, a compassion for those less fortunate and a sincere willingness to help. We can trust Ed Dowd to do the right thing for all the people. Be sure November 7. Vote for Ed Dowd, Democrat for Governor.

Cowboys Drop From Super Bowl Champs To Just An Average Team On The Street

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

For five weeks, Roger Staubach has been on the sidelines watching his Dallas Cowboys tumble from the lofty perch of Super Bowl champion to the position of just another National Football League team.

With Staubach calling the signal's last year—albeit Coach Tom Landry's shuttled-in signals—the Cowboys won their final seven regular-season games. Then, en route to the Super Bowl, they beat Minnesota and San Francisco.

In this year's preseason play, though, a shoulder separation kayoed Staubach for what many observers felt would be most of the season, if not all of it. But while Craig Morton took over as the Cowboys' No. 1 signal-caller and directed them to a 4-2 record, Roger the Dodger mended quickly.

And during the past week, following the 24-20 loss to Washington that knocked the Cowboys out of first place in the National Conference East and into a second-place tie with the New York Giants, Dallas activated Staubach.

Landry insists Morton is still his No. 1 quarterback—but there's a good chance that Staubach will be shouting out the cadence before Monday night's nationally televised game against Detroit ends.

The game is a crucial one for both teams. The Cowboys must win to keep pace with either the Redskins or Giants, who play each other in New York on Sunday. And the Lions, with a Landry of their own, a quarterback named Greg, are currently tied with Green Bay atop the NFC's jumbled Central Division. The Packers host Minnesota at home.

Sunday's other games have Los Angeles at Oakland, Kansas City at San Diego, Miami at Baltimore, San Francisco at Atlanta, New England opposing the Jets in New York, Cleveland at Denver, Pittsburgh at Buffalo, Houston at Cincinnati, Philadelphia at New Orleans and Chicago at St. Louis.

Cats Run Wild

DEXTER — Coach Clyde Vaughn's Bearcats ran roughshod over the Chaffee Red Devils here Friday night, 35-0.

Backfisch started a big night by slogging over from 10 yards out in the first quarter. In the second quarter, it was Backfisch again as he punched in from two yards. Trammell ran over for a two- point play. Backfisch scored again before the end of the first half by rambling 30 yards, with McRoy booting the extra point.

In the third quarter, Brown darted over from 40 yards out. McRoy kicked the extra point. Allen England later intercepted a Chaffee desperation pass and ran it back 80 yards for a score. McRoy added the extra point.

Backfisch ran 120 yards in 15 carries, while his counterpart, Burnett, carried 11 times for 93 yerds.

Dexter plays Kennett next week.

Tigers Rally

CARUTHERSVILLE — Clarence Cunningham scored a touchdown from four yards out and moments later bolted over for a two- point conversion to pad coach Ron Wene's Caruthersville Tigers' gridiron victory Friday night, 28-22.

The Bengals had to battle from behind all night against their Luxora, Ark., visitors before winning the game in the waning minutes of the contest.

Quarterback Joe Cagle sneaked in from one yard out three times during the encounter, erasing a 14-0 Luxora lead in the first half with a pair of TDs, then putting them within two points of their Arkansas visitors with a fourth quarter score, 22-20.

Luxora led 14-0, 22-14 and 22-20, but yielded to the Tigers' late charge.

Tribe Romp

HAYTI - Gideon went home a defeated team Friday night as Hayti came out on top with a score of 28- 6 in a non- league football battle.

Gideon made its only score in the first quarter when a Bulldog player picked up a fumble and carried 50 yards for a touchdown.

From there, it was all Hayti's game. Randy Gardner scored first for Hayti on a 10- yard run. The pass to Jerome Maxey from Gardner was good for the two- point conversion.

In the second quarter, it was Danny White on a six-yard run and Gardner again with the two- point conversion to bring the score to 16- 6 at halftime.

Hayti returned from intermission to score twice more while keeping Gideon scoreless in the last half.

Gardner got Hayti going with a touch-down run of eight yards. The extra point attempt failed and the score stood at 22- 6 after three quarters.

William Brown made Hayti's final score in the last quarter on a 30- yard run.

Danny White was a standout ball carrier for Hayti with 82 yards in 16 carries.

Norrid Stars

MALDEN – A two- yard run by Terry in the second quarter was all that was needed to give Malden a Friday night home victory over East Prairie, 6-0.

It was a rainy night and both teams struggled to get something going. Malden's score was just 20 seconds before halftime, giving the Green Wave the edge they needed.

Coming back in the second half, both teams kept up the battle, but to no avail.

The victory put Malden's record at 4-1 in Southern Division play.

Mules Kick

POPLAR BLUFF — The host Mules carved out a 29-0 victory over the Charleston Bluejays in Northern Division play Friday night.

It was a John Casey to Hurley Rainey scoring pass to start the game in earnest, after the Bluff defense turned in a safety in the first quarter. The extra point was missed to leave the Mule lead at 8-0.

Tutti Hayes came through in the second quarter with a 45- yard scoring run, and Sanders kicked the extra point to make it 15-0 at halftime.

The second half started with a bang as Hayes ran the kickoff 70 yards to the Charleston 18. Two plays later it was Hayes all the way on a 14- yard run. Sanders booted the extra point. Later in the third quarter the same twosome scored again, Hayes from 12 yards out on a run and Sanders splitting the uprights.

First downs told the tale with P.B. rolling up 12 and Charleston collecting only three.

Players Soul-Search About Early Jackie Robinson Days

NEW YORK (AP) — It leaves me with a deep guilt complex," Hank Greenberg said. "A guilt of insensitivity."

Greenberg, home run star of the Detroit Tigers in the 1930s and 1940s and later general manager of the Cleveland Indians, was doing a bit of soulsearching—along with other white baseball personalities—at the funeral Friday for Jackie Robinson.

"Looking back now," he said in the crowded VIP reception room shortly before funeral services at the Riverside Church, "I see where I was wrong.

"I dealt with black baseball players as simply baseball players. I felt I was fair to them. But I never looked behind their social structure or showed any concern for their personal lives outside of baseball."

Greenberg was general manager of the Indians from 1950 through 1958.

"I remember the many times that we—the white players— would check into some fashionable hotel and see the black players standing there waiting for a jitney to take them to some neighborhood boarding house.

"We didn't think anything about it. We just thought about the guys as players and the times dictated that we go our separate ways. Now all of us, I think, are a little ashamed.

"I remember checking in at Baltimore in 1955 and the thought suddenly hit me. 'What the heck is happening?' I asked myself. I told the hotel that from now on our team would have to be quartered together or we'd go to another hotel.

"Baltimore, I think, was the last major league city to integrate."

Bill Veeck, a baseball innovator who headed the St. Louis Browns and Indians, said the game still was dragging its feet in recognition of its players, regardless of color of skin.

"Did you look in the dugouts during the World Series?" he asked. "The white players were all sitting together. The black players were sitting apart."

"It was Veeck who brought the first Negro player, Larry Doby, into the American League while he was at Cleveland.

"I did what I could, but progress is slow. People are not quick to change. There is still much to be done."

The Atlanta Braves' Hank Aaron, who is challenging Babe Ruth's home run record of 714, was another of the leading baseball personalities attending the Robinson funeral.

"I remember the first time I ever met Jackie," Aaron recalled. "I was just breaking in at Milwaukee, 20 years old, in 1954. He taught me a lot. One day he was on third and I was playing second. He darted as if to go home on an infield out. I cocked my aim to thorw. He stopped. I relaxed a moment. Before I knew it, he was sliding into home.

"He was a fierce competitor. He told me, 'You don't play baseball once a week. You play every day. First thing you do is try to get on first. Then on second. Then third and then home.'

What a man. Every time he put on a uniform, he went out to win."

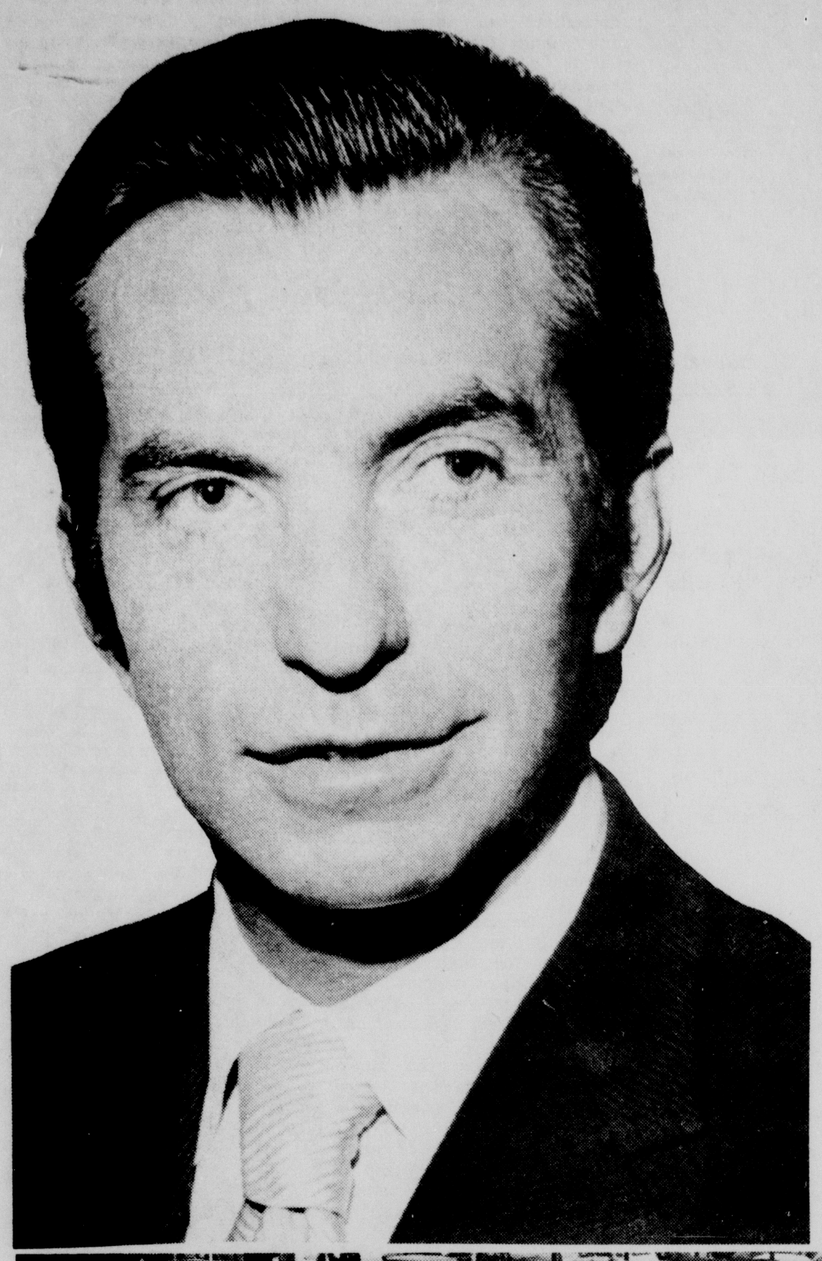
Take Another Look at Dr. Lamb.



NEA Medical Columnist Lawrence Lamb, M.D. receives well over 1,000 letters from his readers every week. They come from small towns and metropolitan areas, from newspaper readers as well as editors, from politicians and high government officials. Even physicians write to Dr. Lamb for information and advice.

Since 1949, when he received his medical degree from the University of Kansas School of Medicine, he has collected the kinds of awards and recognition reserved for the nation's most distinguished physicians and has published more than 120 books, essays, monographs and book chapters.

Among the patients he has attended Dr. Lamb counts Lyndon B. Johnson as senator, vice president and president.

Between 1955 and 1966 the specialist in internal medicine (with a subspecialty in cardiology) was a civilian scientist with the U.S. Air Force. As chief of medicine and chief of the clinical sciences, Dr. Lamb set up and carried out the examinations for the Gemini and Apollo astronauts. He also served as consultant for the Mercury project and trained the physicians who monitored America's first manned space flights.

Because of this and other credentials covering a broad range of medical practice, Dr. Lamb, a former professor of medicine at Baylor University, is a frequent lecturer at major medical schools and important scientific gatherings.

"I believe," says Dr. Lamb, "that I have a responsibility to the general public who really shouldn't be inflicted with two-dollar medical words when explanations can be made in clear, concise English. My job, as I see it, is to shed some light on what is surely a person's most prized possession, his health."

IT'S NICE TO KNOW we aren't the only ones with parking problems. This jam-packed lot, which would do credit to any American city of respectable size, is in Monthlery, France.

Nebraskan Must Reset 200 Clocks Tonight

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Julius Hornstein has quite a task facing him tonight.

While most Americans will be resetting the clocks in their homes to conform with the annual time change, Hornstein will be going from room to room in his north Omaha home, resetting some 200 antique and modern time pieces, ranging in size from a huge Grandfather clock to a tiny 18th century watch that is set with a key.

Hornstein is something of a rarity among clock watchers. He doesn't just collect them, he keeps them all running. On time, all the time.

When you see his collection you're willing to admit it would be a task to set them, but not all that difficult. That's when he explains the workings of some of his pieces.

Take one of the 160 clocks that cover the walls of a sideroom in his home. It was one of the first eight-day chime clocks, manufactured in Plymouth Hollow, Conn. (a place which Hornstein reports is no longer on the map) during the 1800s. Because of its delicate mechanisms, Hornstein can't simply grab "the big hand," and push it back an hour. It must be moved forward 11 hours, at fifteen minute intervals on the clock-face. At each stop, the chimes must be allowed to ring. Then it can be moved forward again. That's the way most of the delicate pieces must be handled.

There are some exceptions; like the tiny pendulum clock made in 1860. It was probably among the first alarm clocks invented. It must be wound and set with a key the size of the average persons thumbnail.

Hornstein has been buying time pieces for some 17 years. His collection includes dozens of Early American pieces, and others from Europe and Asia.

The Prayer
from the Upper Room

Rejoice in the Lord alway: and again I say, Rejoice. (Phillippians 4:4)

PRAYER: Father, forgive us for too often seeing only our problems and failing to see the adventure and growth they offer. We want to have the optimism Christ gives. Amen.

A fire needs three things to burn. Can you name them? (Answer: Oxygen, heat and fuel.)

Girl Warned Not To Be So Funny On Dates Is TV Joker

NEW YORK (AP) — When other girls went out on dates their mothers told them to behave. Or be home by 11. Gail Parent's mother always said: "Now don't be so funny."

But funny she remained, so much so that at 32 she is in the $100,000-a-year bracket as a comedy writer. And her mother's worst fears were not confirmed: Gail got married a week after she was graduated from New York University.

For five years Gail has been a major writer with the Carol Burnett Show. She is the only woman with a top comedy writing job in Hollywood. She and her partner, Kenny Solms, together dreamed up the "As the Stomach Turns," skits, the hilarious Burnett take-off on soap operas.

Gail has also written for TV specials, for The Movie of The Week. She's done a movie, is working on a Broadway play and has written a book, "Sheila Levine is Dead and Living in New York." The book is sneaking up toward the best-seller list.

Gail recalls that when teams were chosen, the last words were always, "Okay, then, you've got Gail."

"At camp, the only way I could get the other kids on my bed was to be funny," she recalls. Her mother encouraged her. "She was a good laugher and I started wondering if I could make other people laugh, too."

How do you become a comedy writer?

"Nobody starts out to become comedy writers," said Gail. "I just hoped I would get married in college so I wouldn't have to worry about what I was going to do." In high school she had memorized every skit of Nichols and May, then a popular comedy team.

In college, she met Solms, also a devout Nichols and May fan. Gail and Solms began improving their own skits.

They started selling oneliners to Vaughn Meader, the comic who did "The First Family" album during the Kennedy administration. Then came $10a-week skits they sold to a New York nightclub.

They stalked apartment buildings where young comedians lived, offering them material.

They even did a television show, writing the skit, hiring the comic...and dancing.

"It was one of those shows where a high school was invited to dance. Not enough showed up, so Kenny and I danced, too."

Their big break came with an album satirizing the wedding of Lucy Baines Johnson. Carol Burnett's husband, who is the executive producer of the show, heard it and hired them.

Gail and her husband, Lair Parent, moved to Hollywood where they still live with their two sons, aged 3 and 8.

He was one of her former teachers at NYU and is now directing TV projects for UCLA.

How does he react to having a comic around the house?

"Wonderful," she said. "He only gets upset when one of the children does something that requires discipline. I see something funny in it and laugh instead."

If one million people each thought their vote didn't count—their nonvote could determine the election.

What's The Law?

The Case Of The Fallen Smoker

THE CASE OF THE FALLEN SMOKER
By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Ruppert was a hard- working attorney for a public agency. While most public employees can handle the gaff, handling the work fell upon poor Ruppert. In fact, he became so overwhelmed with what he had to do, and he became so burdened by the tensions and pressures of his job, that he increased his smoking habit to such a rate that it was near impossible to find him in his smoke- filled room.

One day, however, when they did find poor old Ruppert, he was dead. His heavy smoking had ruined his oxygen tanks and he died of lung cancer.

Shortly thereafter, Ruppert's widow filed a claim for death benefits under the Workman's Compensation Law only to be turned down.

"Sorry," she was told, "but Ruppert died because he smoked too much and not because of his job."

"He smoked too much because of the pressures and tensions of his employment," retorted the tenacious widow. "His job killed him as sure as I stand here."

Intent upon collecting, Ruppert's widow pressed her claim before an appropriate tribunal.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit the widow to collect benefits as result of the fallen smoker?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that since it was credible that Ruppert increased his smoking habit because of his heavy work load and the pressures and tensions of his job, and since his heavy smoking was a contributing factor in the development of his lung cancer, his death arose out of his employment so as to entitle his widow to death benefits.

(Based upon a 1967 California Workman's Compensation appeals Board Decision)

Relaxed Pilot Wants Blimps Back

MIAMI (AP) — As a member of a select society of dirigible pilots, Capt. Frank Hogan would like to bring back the blimp so people can fly low and slow and rediscover America.

"For the last 10 years, speed, speed, speed has been the thing," says Hogan, the pilot of a blimp named Mayflower. "People are getting away from that."

At the age of 50, Hogan has spent the past two decades guiding the big buzzing balloons through the nation's skies. He is one of 20 dirigible pilots flying for Goodyear Inc., which operates four of the five blimps now operating in the world.

He hopes for the day of the "superblimp," a giant ship carrying 300 people instead of six passengers and a pilot, which would slowly tool across the American continent at 40 or 50 miles an hour.

Passengers could relax in luxurious lounges, "watching the jack rabbits" bouncing along the prairies as he now does on promotional trips between visits to various cities.

"I think I could sell a lot of trips across the country," Hogan said. "Now, all a person sees when he goes from one city to another is two airports and a motel."

The former World War II bomber pilot said his visions are mostly wistful. Most people still think of the 1937 Hindenburg disaster at Lakehurst, N. J., when they think of blimps, he said.

Modern blimps are filled with nonflammable helium in contrast to the volatile hydrogen gas which consumed the Hindenburg, killing 37 people.

Britons Take Jungle Hike In Hope Of Tea With Headhunters

LONDON (AP) — Eighteen Britons flew off to New Guinea Friday night for a 23-day hike through the jungle in hopes of having tea with a tribe of headhunters.

The trail-blazing group, aged 20 to 60, includes four women. They are paying Cook's, the travel agency, $1,320 for the ultimate in get-away-from-it-all package tours.

Apart from swamps, crocodiles, snakes and exhausting marches through some of the world's most rugged country, they face monsoon rains that sweep New Guinea at this time of year.

The Stone Age head-hunters live in the mountainous hinterland of Australian-administered New Guinea. They are not expected to be too much of a threat.

The tribe, called Biami, is reported to have given up cannibalism long ago. They do, however, keep a primitive museum of war implements and the heads of their victims near the tribal home at Mt. Hagan.

Cook's advises: "Though not classified as a danger area, the patrol will need to proceed with caution."

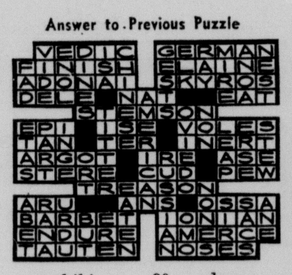
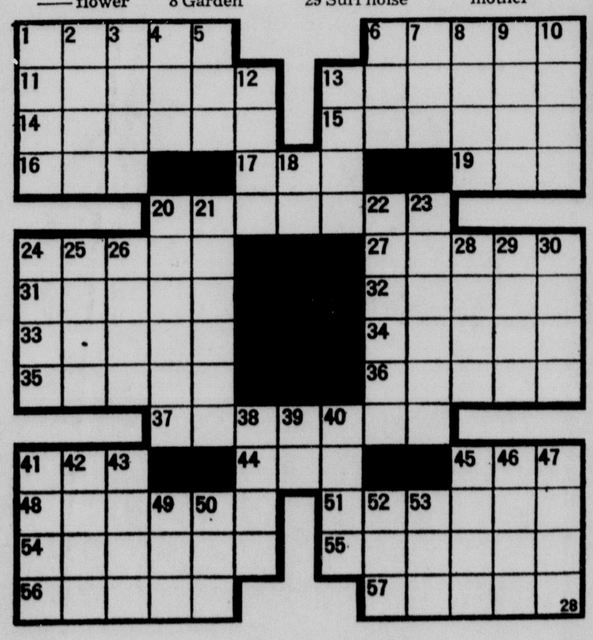
Answer to Previous Puzzle





Today In U.S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Saturday, Oct. 28, the 302nd day of 1972. There are 64 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1919, Congress overrode a veto by President Woodrow Wilson and enacted Prohibition.

On this date: In 1492, Christopher Columbus discovered Cuba.

In 1636, Harvard College was founded in Massachusetts.

In 1866, the Statue of Liberty was dedicated on Bedloe's Island in New York Harbor.

In 1922, Fascists under Benito Mussolini staged a march on Rome.

In 1958, the Roman Catholic patriarch of Venice was elected Pope. He took the name John XXIII.

In 1961, West Germany agreed to purchase U.S. military equipment supplies in Europe for about $600 million.

Did Soviet Back Anti-Mao Plot?

By RAY CROMLEY

(Last of two related columns.)

WASHINGTON (NEA)

A series of intriguing questions is raised by the anti-Mao Tse-tung document Mao himself is now circulating throughout China:

- Was the Soviet Union prepared to give active aid and support to a group of high ranking Communist civilians and military men seeking to overthrow Mao?
- Specifically, was Moscow prepared to use its military forces to so occupy Mao's armies and air force units he would not have the ability to put down an armed rebellion by his opponents?
- Was the Soviet Union prepared to give those who planned to rebel against Mao a "temporary nuclear protection umbrella?"

These implied acts of Soviet cooperation with the rebels were specifically spelled out in the document reportedly written by Lin Li-kuo, son and ally of Lin Piao, Mao Tse-tung's "heir" until deposed last year, allegedly after this "secret" document was discovered.

What is not clear is whether the Russians actually promised this cooperation or whether the plotters only hoped they would give it. The document talks of secret negotiations with Moscow and lists the Russian forms of cooperation.

But does the document mean Moscow "would" or that Moscow "could." That is the question.

If this Soviet cooperation had indeed been promised, or if Mao, in fact, was afraid that it would be forthcoming, he in truth had compelling reasons for seeking some sort of relationship with President Nixon and the United States.

For if there was this plot in which some of China's top military and political chieftains were involved, and if they did have the promised cooperation of the U.S.S.R. then Mao last year faced (and perhaps still faces) a much more serious threat than a border war with Russia or a Russian preemptive strike to knock out China's growing military nuclear industry.

There is reason to believe that a united China could live through a war with the Soviet Union, and that Mao could survive such a war. But if, during that war, he faced a civil war led by some of his ablest and most experienced associates, then Mao would most certainly go down to defeat before this combined onslaught from without and within.

What makes this scenario the more intriguing is that Mao may have inserted these Soviet lines into the document in order to unify his people against the Russians and to reduce the opposition, strong in some Chinese circles, to association with the United States.

Perhaps long-time friend Lin Piao was merely the scapegoat Mao required for his shifting policies.

Archie Bunker Helped McGovern

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — With assists from television's Archie Bunker and Minnesota's Hubert H. Humphrey, Democratic presidential nominee George McGovern is seeking to dispel any image of radicalism lingering about him in crucial California.

Humphrey chimed in by telephone, and actor Carroll O'Connor via a campaign commercial, as McGovern broadcast his campaign wares in a question-and-answer session televised statewide Friday night.

In between, McGovern got calls from some critics who accused him of mudslinging and mind-changing. "The show is heating up," he said. McGovern also heard from the man who wanted to know why he keeps saying President Nixon should have ended the war four years ago "when he wasn't even in office."

McGovern acknowledged Nixon didn't take office until Jan. 20, 1969, but said "there's no point in quibbling over a few weeks."

"I want to give him credit for any settlement, even if it comes on the day before the election," McGovern said. "I'm not interested in a political issue, I'm not interested in what my statements on the war do to me politically."

O'Connor, who plays Archie Bunker, the bigoted blue-collar star of the television program "All in the Family," appeared in a commercial denouncing what he called "the radicalism of the present administration."

"Radicalism is what any conservative man must try to remove from authority, and that is why I as a conservative man am going to vote with confidence for Sen. George McGovern," said O'ConnorBunker.

Humphrey called in from Mankato, Minn., for a 3½-minute chat with McGovern, whose views he sharply denounced during their California presidential primary campaign.

McGovern asked him to spend some more time campaigning for the ticket in California. "We think with your added voice to what we've already said out here, it may provide that extra margin that we need to carry California on Nov. 7," the nominee said.

"George, I'm going to try to do that," said Humphrey. "I have a feeling that things are on the move for you and they're on the move strongly ...."

"After hearing about Mr. Nixon's vetoes today, my glands are all revved up," said the Minnesota senator.

McGovern denounced the nine vetoes, too, as he campaigned in Los Angeles Friday with Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

Later, he said Nixon should "call a special session of Congress and give us a chance to override those vetoes."

Congress is in adjournment and they were pocket vetoes which can't be overridden anyhow.

Kennedy was campaigning with McGovern today at a meeting of Democrats from Orange County, one of the most conservative counties in the nation.

At one stop Friday, McGovern jokingly said that Kennedy had told him he couldn't serve eight years in the White House, only four. Kennedy is widely viewed as a top prospect for future Democratic presidential nomination.

MEETING OF MINDS on a vital issue—national security. President Nixon and Defense Secretary Secretary Melvin Laird exchange private words during a White House conference.

What You Want To Know?

Q. I saw the movie of the week "The Reluctant Heroes" on TV, and I was delightfully surprised to see Ken Berry give such a good performance in a relatively serious part. Although the story had a lot of comedy, it had its serious moments too and Berry was right in there with the best of them. Is Ken Berry going to have another TV series soon? I enjoyed hiw work in both "F Troop" and "Mayberry, F.F.D."— S.M., Albany, N.Y.

A. Ken Berry is not slated for a new TV series of his own but he's very busy guest starring on many TV shows, including variety hours. Ken is a triple threat talent...that is, he can act, sing and dance.

Charles Schulz Finds Ideas In A Variety Of Sources

"You're Elected, Charlie Brown"

Sunday, October 29, 6:30-7:00 P.M.

When something intrigues writer- artist Charles M. Schulz, that something will more than likely appear in his famous "Peanuts" comic strips and in the television specials based on the adventures of Charlie Brown and his friends.

Schulz's enthusiasm for baseball is translated into seasonal disasters on the diamond for pitcher Brown and his ill- starred All- Stars.

Snoopy dreams of triumphs on the ice- hockey rink (as Schulz once did) and flies his Sopwith Camel with a verve that stems from Schulz's hobby of researching the exploits of the World War I pursuit plane.

Now Schulz has "discovered" call- in talk shows.

A parody on these broadcast conversations between listeners and emcees on hundreds of stations around the country will be a part of "You're Elected, Charlie Brown," new animated- cartoon Peanuts special, to be broadcast Sunday, Oct. 29 (6:30— 7:00PM,) on the CBS Television Network.

Schulz got hooked on the talkathons during a period of enforced rest following a siege of flu. "After listening to a number of these programs where people just pick up their telephones ane engate the host in conversation, I was struck by the different types of callers-- and the similarity of their various approaches." "There are day people and night people, angry people and happy people, opinionated people and vague people-- and, mostly, people who just like to talk," Schulz explains. "I made notes of some of the things people actually say with the idea of working the subject into a strip segment."

In "You're Elected, Charlie Brown," Schulz found the perfect spot in which to share his "research" with Peanuts' fans.

With Linus running for the office of school president, his campaign manager, Lucy Van Pelt, sets him up on a local talk show to "get his message to the people." Callers are invited to telephone their questions to the candidate.

Director and engineer for the broadcast is-- Snoopy.

Singing Group Guest On

"The New Bill Cosby Show"

Music man Ray Charles and his Raelettes singing group guest star on "The New Bill Cosby Show" Monday, Oct. 30 (9:00— 10:00 PM,) on the CBS Television Network.

Charles, the Raelettes, the Quincy Jones Orchestra and host Cosby join to present "Look What They've Done to My Song." Later, Charles sings "Hit the Road, Jack" and "America the Beautiful."

The "Wife of the Week" sketch offers Cosby in his usual husband role and Teresa Graves as Mrs. Nervous, who hears ominous sounds in the night. Another sketch finds Cosby and Charles at an amusement park, patronizing a shooting gallery operated by Quincy Jones. In a comedy dialogue, Cosby explains to cast regular Michael Elias how an American can arrange to be buried inexpensively in Hong Kong. In another skit, cast regulars Susan Tolsky and Lola Falana portray a fortune teller and a would- be- customer, respectively.

Rounding out the program are a series of monologues by Cosby and a pair of performances by the star as the show's familiar super- dude character, who's continually on the prowl for a cutie but never quite successful.

NBC Friday Night Highlights

The Little People

7:30-8:00 P.M.

Tabo Matsuda (Russell Masunaga) is unhappy as he watches his parents, Hiroshi and Miiko (Edwin Kuniyoshi and Lita Kuniyoshi), become naturalized, but the reason is not what Dr. Sean Jamison (Brian Keith) and his staff assume.

Dr. Anne Jamison and Nurse Puni (Shelley Fabares and Victoria Young) are very concerned and Sean promises to talk with Tabo. Meanwhile, the lad gets some of the paint which Ronnie and Alfred (Michael Gray and Stephen Hague) are using and paints a dirty word on the hospital wall and in other places. Sean undergoes many embarrassing moments while attempting to obliterate the word.

This episode was written by Garry Marshall and Bob Brunner and directed by Richard Lang.

'Ghost Story'

8:00-9:00 P.M.

A mysterious bond between identical twins reaches back from the grave to torture the surviving twin and her mother. Eleanor Parker and Pamela Franklin guest- star; Sebastian Cabot is host.

Christina (Miss Franklin) returns home after the death of her twin sister and father and tries to learn the reason for their demise from her mother, Paula (Miss Parker). She seeks the aid of a mystic, Mrs. Eliscu (Signe Hasso), in a seance to call her sister back from the dead.

Tod Andrews is cast as Christina's father, Andrew. Andrew Duggan plays the neighbor, Jeremy, and Stephen Brooks is his son, Ethan.

"Half a Death" was written by Henry Slesar and directed by Les Martinson.

'Banyon'

9:00-10:00 P.M.

Officially ordered off the case, Police Lt. Pete McNeil (Richard Jaeckel) hires Banyon (Robert Forster) to solve a suspected murder that has bothered him for nearly seven years. Jack Cassidy and Diana Muldaur guest- star.

Seven years earlier, businessman Jennings Marshall (Morgan Sterne) reported that his partner had mysteriously disappeared, but McNeil is convinced Marshall murdered him. McNeil wants Banyon to prove it was murder before the legal waiting period is up and Marshall can collect insurance. Banyon attempts to learn more about the missing man by visiting his widow, Paula Vander (Miss Muldaur). Later a mystery man (Cassidy) attempts to hire Banyon away from the case.

Milton S. Gelman wrote the script; Ralph Senensky directed.

'Emergency'

"Fuzz Lady"

Saturday-Nov. 4 - 7:00-8:00 P.M.

Johnny Gage (Randolph Mantooth) has woman trouble and Rampart emergency is besieged by a rash of burglaries.

Gage and Roy DeSoto (Kevin Tighe) rush to the scene of a mugging in which the culprit's arm was broken by Sheila Thomas (Sharon Gless), an overzealous policewoman working undercover. Gage falls for her. The rescue of Gus Williams (Paul Fix) from a fire leads to a controversy with Dr. Mike Morton (Ron Pinkard), which Dr. Brackett (Robert Fuller) settles to the paramedics' benefit. Nurse McCall and Dr. Early (Julie London and Bobby Troup) encounter successive thefts of hospital equipment. Sheila is assigned the case and Gage has to admit that he can't pick women. This episode was written by Michael Donovan and directed by Chris Nyby Jr.

(Emergency!" will be pre- empted Oct. 28 by "NBC Saturdan Night at the Movies.")

What You Want To Know

Q. I am one of those fans who saw "LoveStory" five times and cried each time and I don't care who knows it. I, of course, being a girl, fell madly in love with Ryan O'Neal. Is he going to star in a TV series soon? That's what I would really like...to have Ryan in a series on TV where I can tune in and watch that incredibly handsom guy every week.—K.P., Paterson, N.J.

A. Ryan O'Neal is a hot movie name these days, resulting from his popularity in "Love Story." He has little time for a regular TV series. He recently completed a film comedy titled "What's Up, Doc?" with none other than Barbra Streisand.

FBI Admits Monitoring Congress For 22 Years

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI, which never before had acknowledged that it maintained files on Congress members and candidates, now says that it had been doing so for 22 years but stopped the practice Friday.

"Such a program is not essential to FBI operations," said Acting Director L. Patrick Gray III as he ordered an end to it.

"I believe it is obvious that it can be misinterpreted easily as a program to investigate congressmen and congressional candidates," he added in the statement released to newsmen. "Therefore, I have decided to terminate this program as of today."

Gray said that, although the agency had maintained files of biographical data on congressional members and candidates, it had not conducted fullfledged investigations of them.

The FBI came under attack during the last years of the late J. Edgar Hoover's reign for allegedly tapping telephones of some congressmen or investigating them in other ways.

The FBI denied it. And Gray, in interviews shortly after he was appointed acting director, said:

"I have not found any evidence whatsoever of the existence of secret files or political dossiers."

Friday, though, Gray said an incident in Ohio brought to his attention the fact that the FBI since 1950 had compiled data on Congress members and candidates from newspapers, magazines, campaign literature and various reference publications.

The Ohio incident involved an FBI agent in Lorain County, who had been making inquiries about the background of John M. Ryan, Democratic candidate for Congress in Ohio's 13th district.

Gray said the agent's inquiries "were not authorized and were in violation of specific instructions that the gathering of information on congressional candidates is to be made from readily available published sources only, and not through any outside inquiries."

The FBI, he added, "is conducting an internal administrative investigation of this agent's actions to determine why this instruction was not followed."

The agent, Lee Kias, was functioning "as an interested voter" in asking about Ryan, said John Burns, agent in charge of the Cleveland FBI office.

Ryan, a realtor, is running against Republican incumbent Charles A. Mosher.

The initial purpose of the data collection, Gray said, "was to provide briefing material for FBI officials who might desire it before making a call on a newly elected congressman or senator."

"In short, the routine was a part of the congressional relations program of the FBI."

THE REV. COY O. PRESSON, pastor of First Church of the Nazarene, begins the task of resetting each of the 75 clocks he has in his home. Daylight Saving Time ends at 2 a.m. Sunday, meaning that all clocks need to be set one hour earlier for Central Standard Time. He started collecting and repairing clocks five years ago and many of them date to the middle 1800s. The Rev. Mr. Presson commented that it is easier to stop a clock than to reset the time. Portageville Farmer Dead From Beating

MARSTON — The badly beaten body of L.A. Davis, 73, a retired farmer was found at 4 p.m. Friday in a drainage ditch near his home on Portageville Route One.

Davis, who lived alone, appeared to have died from wounds caused by a sever beating about the face and nose with a sharp object nearly a week ago.

His body was discovered by a neighbor, H. A. Wilson, about 200 feet from Davis' home which is about four miles northwest of Marston.

New Madrid County Coroner Gene Clayton, who investigated the murder along with the New Madrid county sheriff's department, said there was no evidence of robbery and that $36 and keys to Davis' truck were found in his pocket.

Papers were found scattered near the truck and parts of his eye glasses and his cap were found about 50 feet from the body. Clayton said the body could not easily be seen from the road.

Wilson told authorities he had gone to the Davis home when Davis had failed to bring his mail to him for several days.

A coroner's jury viewed the body Friday night, and an inquest will be held early next week. Jury members are Raymond Howard, Howard Phillips, Howard Crisler, Ras Jones, William Allgier and Dale Ray.

Leonard Andrew Davis was born Oct. 19, 1899 at Clubb, Mo., to the late John and Victoria Davis.

He was a veteran of World War I.

Survivors include two sons, John Davis of Sikeston and Robert Davis of Bertrand Route One; one daughter, Mrs. Margaret Conci of Murphysboro, Ill.; one brother, Robert O. Davis of Fenton; one sister, Mrs. Hattie Ward of California; and 12 grandchildren.

The body is at Welsh Funeral Home in Sikeston where friends may call after 1 p.m. Sunday.

Services will be held Monday at 11 a.m. in the funeral home with the Rev. Wade Paris, pastor of Murray Lane Baptist Church, officiating.

Burial will follow in St. Libory Cemetery in Patterson.

Strike Pact Close For GM In St. Louis

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Tentative agreement has been reached in a dispute between General Motors and the United Auto Workers Union over production standards and layoffs at the St. Louis plant.

A company spokesman said the agreement Friday night settles "the major issues in dispute." He declined to comment on the pact, pending the outcome of a union ratification meeting scheduled next Wednesday.

Bond Issue Referendum Delayed Until November

A million- dollar bond issue referendum for a new school probably will not be held until late November, Superintendent of Schools Sam Harbin said Friday. He listed Nov. 28 as a possible date.

The election was originally set for Oct. 31, but school officials overlooked a 1969 law stating that only registered voters can vote in school elections.

Harbin said this meant the board must have district voter registration books. In the past, voters were allowed to vote at any school they wished. Harbin said the 1969 law requires that voters be assigned by ward and precinct to a specific school.

However, since some residents of the Sikeston school district live in New Madrid County, the board cannot do this until New Madrid County voters decide whether or not to establish voter registration. The county will vote on the issue on Nov. 7.

If a voter lives in the district but is not registered, he may sign an affadavit saying he is a qualified voter, Harbin said.

The bond issue, which will pay for the school and its furnishings, will not require a tax increase.

The school will be located at the intersection of Virginia and Twitty Streets, south of the high school.

A two-thirds majority is needed to approve the bond issue.

The board of education will announce the election at least 15 days before the election.

11 Hurt In Accidents

Eleven persons were injured in seven traffic accidents on area roads and highways Friday and early today, according to the highway patrol.

A two-car accident at 1:25 a.m. today on Highway 67 two miles south of Fredericktown resulted in injuries to Michael Pigg, 21, of Lemay. He was taken to Madison County Memorial Hospital in Fredericktown with cuts of the lip.

The accident occurred when a car driven by William Leroy Pickert, 21, of Mill Creek ran off the road, then slid back across the center line into the path of the Pigg auto.

Buddy Lee Fears, 27, of Charleston received chin and arm cuts Friday when his truck, traveling at a high rate of speed, ran off the road, struck a building and sideswiped a utility pole. The accident took place at 11:45 a.m. on Highway 62 in Bertrand.

Three persons were injured in an accident at 10:45 a.m. Friday on Highway 77 three miles north of Diehlstadt.

Injured was Thomas Graham, 22, of Charleston, chest and facial cuts and scratches; Verl Lintner, 66, of Unionville, possible broken ribs and chest injuries; and Marie Lintner, 61, of Unionville, facial cuts. All were taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston.

The accident occurred when the car driven by Litner rounded a curve and skidded on wet pavement into the path of the car driven by Graham.

A one-car accident Friday at 3:30 p.m. on 61 two miles south of Steele resulted in injuries to three passengers. Clarence Royston, 21, of St. Louis, received facial cuts and back injuries; May Davis, 57, of St. Louis, facial cuts and cuts to arm; and Ella Davis, 89, facial cuts. They were taken to Pemiscot County Memorial Hospital in Hayti.

The accident occurred when the driver of the car, Ozella Davis, 39, of St. Louis lost control on wet pavement, ran off the road and struck a dirt driveway.

Leona Massey, 51, of Charleston received possible back and neck injuries in an accident Friday at 10:10 p.m. on Highway 62 three miles west of Charleston. She was taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston.

The accident occurred when the Massey car slowed or stopped and was struck in the rear by a car driven by Otis Davidson, 68, of Sikeston.

A one-car accident at 12:15 a.m. today on Highway 25 one-half mile south of Delta resulted in serious injuries to the driver, Charles Sheffer, 21, of Bloomfield. He sustained a fractured right jaw, fractured right arm and right leg, sever head cuts and chest injuries. He was taken to Southeast Missouri Hospital in Cape Girardeau.

Traveling at a high rate of speed, Sheffer's car left the road, ran down the shoulder and struck a bridge.

At 7 p.m. Friday on a country road six miles east of Puxico, Michael Rogers, 30, of Puxico received spinal injuries, was taken to Memorial Dexter Hospital and was transferred to St. Luke's Hospital in St. Louis.

The accident occurred when a car driven by William Rainey, 18, of Puxico Route Two ran into the rear of a parked car owned by Billy Bryant, 42, of Puxico just as Rogers was getting into the passengers' side of the auto.

3 IRA Commanders Captured By British

BELFAST (AP) — Three Irish Republican Army commanders, including a top marksman, were captured by British troops in Belfast and Londonderry Friday, the army said.

An army spokesman said a patrol grabbed Jim "Doc" Doherty, 21, operations officer for the IRA's Provisional wing in Londonderry's Creggan district.

The army refused to identify the two other high-ranking Provisionals, both captured in Belfast, but security sources reported they were company commanders from two IRA battalions.

3rd District Poll Puts Dowd In Slight Lead

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Voters questioned in the 3rd Congressional District including south St. Louis and three adjoining townships gave Democrat Edward L. Dowd a slim lead over Republican Christopher "Kit" Bond in the campaign for governor.

Results were published in today's St. Louis Globe-Democrat and Kansas City Star. The two papers questioned 1,116 voters in south St. Louis and Gravois, Concord and Lemay townships.

Dowd's over-all lead was 4.7 per cent. He had 49 per cent support to 44.3 per cent for Bond with the rest undecided. In his home area of St. Louis he was ahead by 14.1 per cent.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

To people past 50, the idea of a good time is to keep well.

* * *

"Between now and election," observes the National Association of Manufacturers, "candidates and incumbents in public office will be offering solutions to all our problems -- except one -- who is to pay the bill? Somewhat as in the game of musical chairs, the bill is passed around until the music stops, and who's left standing alonge and holding the tab? You're right. It's you and I -- the taxpayer. When the aspirants talk about closing the so-called tax loopholes, consider this. These 'loopholes' turn out to be such things as taxfree interest on municipal bonds (to help keep local taxes down), or the oil depletion allowance (which encourages exploration to keep gas and oil from becoming scarce and more expensive), or the deductions which we take for interest on our home mortgage, medical costs and charitable contributions. So when you hear how this or that will be done say: Who is going to pay for it? Chances are that one way or another, the truthful answer would be: 'You will'."

Since 1968, the date of the last presidential election, the population of voting -age showed a net increase of 19.4 million, reaching a total of 140 million persons in November, 1972. This represents a 16.1 per cent increase in the voting - age population during the four-year period. This unusually large increase came about by the addition of nearly 11 million new potential voters as a result of lowering the voting age to age 18 and by the large number of persons reaching their majority since the 1968 election.

Nearly 61 per cent or 73 million person of voting age cast votes for President electors in the 1968 election. If the same per cent casts votes for President in 1972 as in 1968, about 85 million voters would be expected to go to the polls this November.

As election time approaches, those letters from some Congressmen to constituents at home are beginning to flood the mails. And if the letter from our member in the House of Representatives is typical, their theme helps to explain why we have inflation, why prices keep rising and why the average family can expect to have a tougher time of making ends meet. That theme is simply to get as much as possible from the federal treasury for hometown projects.

Some of the campaign materials we've seen listed some of the appropriations he'd helped obtain for the district. Each program or appropriation is directed toward a certain group of voters. Nothing is said about the stern need for economy in government spending or the danger of inflation to the savings and earnings of every citizen in the country.

Apparently, these spenders in Congress were deaf to the remark of George P. Shultz, U. S. Treasury Secretary, who recently commented, "Do we have the guts in this country to exercise discipline over how much we spend so that we won't have to raise taxes or endure further inflation? That is the battle, the struggle that is going on right now."

That's why President Nixon must veto the reckless spending bills from a majority in Congress who perpetuate themselves in office by buying votes. It's time for a change -- or we will be up the creek without a paddle one of these days.

* * *

Frank Ferrell Mayor of Sikeston, contends a politician is someone who doesn't permit the facts to influence his judgment.

* * *

Since World War II over thirty years ago when "war taxes" were temporarily added as part of the taxpayer's patriotic duty, we've observed that Congress has never been unduly concerned about where the money is to come from to meet politically - motivated and expanding social programs. That is why staggering deficits pile up each year, and inflation has become a way of life that threatens the security, the savings and the standard of living of every American.

But, if we read the signs right, a growing number of these citizens do not like this trend and congressional candidates are beginning to find rough-sledding this election year, especially those running for re-election.

The comment of an Iowa editor is typical: "Now I'd like to ask some of those members of Congress who vote for these programs how those of us who are footing the bill are supposed to increase our income by the same percentage so that we can afford the raise of 20 per cent in Social Security and other tax increases. Most of us are going to get poor to be able to give somebody else a better standard of living. I say again, I don't mind those people getting more. What I wish would happen is that the government would find a way to heave out some of their costly nonproductive departments and switch some of that money to social security ... It would help considerably if there were a little belt-tightening and efficiency at the top rather than always from the ground up."

Congressmen whose salaries are now higher then the incomes of most taxpayers and whose prerogatives of office have grown immensely seem to have lost touch with the problems of the common man -- to whom they profess allegiance when they ask for votes.

A GOOD PUBLIC SERVANT

James C. Kirkpatrick is seeking reelection as Missouri's Secretary of State -- and it couldn't happen to a nicer guy. We are prejudiced in his favor because we have known him for many years and because he is a fellow newspaperman -- owner of the Windsor, Mo., Review, now edited by his son, Don. But beyond all that, the conduct of his office has been such that he deserves to be reelected.

The opportunity for error of omission and commission and even for venality is ever present in the Secretary of State's office, but never once has any shadow been cast over Jimmy Kirkpatrick's administration of that office.

He has instigated election reforms which protect the integrity of the ballot, makes voting as simple and convenient as possible and makes elections as economical as possible for the taxpayers.

Mr. Kirkpatrick has modernized the corporations divisions to provide prompt, efficient information on the 70,000 corporations doing business in Missouri. In the securities division, Kirkpatrick has expanded and improved the division in order to assure more protection to Missouri investors in stocks, bonds and investments.

In many other areas Kirkpatrick has been cited for his efficient reorganization to expand services, yet reduce space and costs. During the past fiscal year Kirkpatrick's operation has returned to the state treasury almost $2.50 for every dollar it cost to operate.

Banks, savings associations, lawyers and many in commercial fields have benefitted by Kirkpatrick's efficient operation of his office. He has provided them faster service in a more efficient manner.

Secretary Kirkpatrick has said, "I have the best job in state government and I get a real thrill out of trying to do it as well as possible. I am seeking reelection to finish the job I have started-- to improve the secretary of state's office to give the best service at the lowest cost possible."

We like Kirkpatrick as an individual, and have for many years, but we also like him for concept of public service and the way in which he lives up to his concept.

Few Missourians, if any, are better or more widely known across the state than Jimmy. His friends are legion and, in our opinion they will see that he is reelected in the fall.

We happily encourage you to vote for Jimmy Kirkpatrick for Secretary of State.

REPEAT AS NEEDED

A gentleman pushing a car containing a screaming baby through a large supermarket was overheard by most of the patrons of the store as he softly repeated two phrases, "Keep calm, boy," and "don't get excited, Mike."

A lady remarked as she pushed her cart next to his, "My goodness, it's nice of you to do the shopping for your family and mind the baby at the same time, but don't you think that you could do more than just comfort little Mike with those phrases?"

"Lady," replied the harried man soberly, "I'm Mike."

* * *

The causes of this improvement are many — sanitation and epidemic control; medical attention; less hard physical labor; and adequate food, with nutrition the important factor. Even if all other conditions are favorable, nutrient deficiencies could cause deaths, and it's not eating more food that counts but the higher nutrient quality of it.

As for organic foods, the United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association reports that "most food alleged to be grown completely without chemicals is mislabeled ... there is no such thing as an "organic grown" plant. Plants utilize water soluble inorganic ions, not organic compounds. They cannot use natural fertilizer until soil organisms break it down to inorganic elements. Foods passed off as "naturally grown" are often inferior in spite of a higher price tag.

A CATALOGUE AND THE RICH

One of the popular myths of our society is that rich people tend to be smarter than poor people. There's very little evidence to support the claim.

Consider the facts:

Rich people run the railroads — and the railroads don't work.

Rich people run the cities — and the cities don't work.

Rich people run the federal government — and that doesn't work either.

As a matter of fact, there's very little in our society that works. About the last really workable invention to come down the pike was the Zippo lighter, and rich people don't use them.

The general ineptitude of the rich is illustrated with even greater clarity by the current Christmas catalogue of Neiman- Marcus.

Neiman- Marcus, in case you haven't heard, is a department store chain based in Dallas, Tex., that caters to the rich. Its catalogue features such items as a $150,000 emerald ring, $42,000 sable coats, and a $32,000 jet-powered sailplane.

These items are okay, one expects to pay a few bob for emeralds, sables, and planes that go swish in the night. But get this Neiman - Marcus also offers life-size, made-to-order effigies of people for $3,000 a crack.

I mean, you call them up and say, "I'd like a lifesize statue of my wife to keep me company while she's on shopping trips," and they send a sculptor over to design a manequin that looks like her.

The statue comes equipped with a button which, when pressed, causes the statue to laugh or say yes, whichever you choose. $3,000 (plus the air fare of the sculptor).

Now, can you imagine going up to a steel worker in Gary, Ind., and saying: "Hey buddy! How would you like a statue of your wife that laughs or says yes when you press a button? Only $3,000."

He's say, "How would you like a broken jaw?"

Dip into the catalogue anywhere. In the "At Home" section they feature a stunning little t-shirt for only $21. A few pages on, you can buy a pair of "shoe mittens" to protect your shoes for $6.50 a pair.

The mittens don't do anything a pair of 98 -cent sweat socks won't do, but rich people like getting ripped off.

Neiman-Marcus also sells pieces of wood to brace against doors so that burglars cannot burgle. The tab for the 9-by-29-inch slab is $12.

Can you imagine the most ignorant sharecropper in the meanest section of southern Louisiana being cheated like that? Sharecroppers aren't that dumb.

The catalogue features goodies for the kids, too. A 1/8 scale, gas-powered train with 250 feet of track ($2,500), and a 15-page coloring book with Swiss crayons and West German water colors ($10).

The suspicion grows that the Pentagon is run by subcribers to the Neiman - Marcus Christmas book — rich people.

A Pentagon buyer goes to an aircraft manufacturer and says: "What do you have in bombers?"

And the manufacturer says, "Here's a sporty little number with sweptback wings that I can put in your hanger for only $2 billion."

"Oh, boy," the buyer exclaims. "Sweptback wings. How fast will it fly?"

"Flying costs extra," the manufacturer says.

"Never mind, wrap it up. I love sweptback wings."

Maybe the way to get this country back on the right track is to get rich people out of the driver's seat.

Put a limit of ... say ... $50,000 on the net worth of elected officials. Pay congressmen a salary of $12,500 and the president $15,000. Give the vice-resident a salary commensurate with his duties, $4,500.

You'd see a different kind of government.

Smarter, undoubtedly.

Two men were having a drink together and discussing their respective employers. After listening to a long tirade from his companion, one man finally said: "Well, on the other hand, everybody has something good about him. There must be something you can say in the guy's favor, isn't there?"

The critic gave it several moments of deep thought. "Well, yes," he said at last, "I guess I can. He's the only fellow I know who can be the life of a party by not coming to it."

HOW TO TRIM INSURANCE COSTS

Contrary to popular belief, decisions of car owners can have much to do with the level of auto insurance rates. A release from the American Mutual Insurance Alliance contains motorist tips for holding down rates. It says, "Every motorist has a hand in determining how much he pays for his automobile insurance. His performance as a driver, where and how he uses his car, the kind of car he drives, where he lives, the ages of the people driving his car, and the insurance coverages he buys all have a bearing on his insurance rates."

The release offers a number of suggestions to car owners. It advises them to check with insurance men before changing cars. Premiums are higher for some high performance cars. Some companies are rating cars for damageability. Buyers of similarly priced cars with different repair records could end up paying collision premiums that differ by as much as 40 per cent a year. Premiums on some cars are higher, because they are targets for auto thieves. If a person owns more than one car, he sould insure all of them with the same insurer. Most companies offer a discount for multiple policies in the same family.

Numerous other suggestions to cut insurance costs are included in the release, but these are sufficient to show that auto insurance premiums, to a substantial degree, are based upon the discretionary choice of car owners. This is an important factor to consider in today's over-all high cost of owning and operating a motor vehicle.

RUSSIA AND GRAIN

Rumors have persisted for some time that the Russians are in serious trouble. Now the news media is beginning to document those rumors. The people of the Soviet Union are running out of grain and the other staple commodities of life. Grain is hard to come by in that vast communist country. Potatoes and other vegetables the Russian people rely on so heavily are also in short supply.

No one in his right mind wants to see people starve. Yet no citizen of the United States of America wants to see our soldiers, sailors and airmen killed by Russian weapons. That is exactly what has been happening in Vietnam for many years. It also happened in Korea. Now our government has made trade deals with the Kremlin under which the Soviets will purchase $750 million worth of grain from this country. This deal is rather perplexing in view of the damage the Russians have done to us in foreign affairs and through internal sabotage.

The Russians government blames the grain shortage on drought conditions and this is possibly true. The United States, on the other hand, has experienced severe droughts this year. We did have a surplus of wheat, however. One wonders how long the surplus will last if we supply the population of the Soviet Union.

The leaders of this nation should think about the U. S. first. If grain is sent to Russia, we should demand a heavy price for it, like the release of prisoners in Vietnam and the end of the war on a fair basis. We held the trump card. It looks like we did not use it.

Inside Labor

Whose Command Post? McGovern Pledges Militant Labor Chiefs White House Support in '73 Massive Negotiations

WASHINGTON — During a start- stop- speak- start political sweep the other day, Richard Nixon spotted a huge crane at a shopping center along the highway. On it was a huge sign proclaiming the Teamsters and construction unions for the President's reelection. Mighty pleased, he stopped.

A few days earlier Nelson Rockefeller's aides had asked the White House for a list of must- invitees to the governor's reception for the President at his famed, lush Pocantico Hills estate. On the White House list were the names of a powerful Teamsters' chief, powerful construction union leaders, and Longshoremen's president Teddy Gleason.

Later in the week, in the White House, one of the tiny group of advisers with immediate- access- to- the- President status observed that no new Secretary of Labor, or any official of consequence in this vast sector on the domestic front, would be appointed without the approval of Teamsters' leader Frank Fitzsimmons and AFL-CIO chief George Meany.

That is, of course, if Richard Nixon is reelected. Should it become "President" McGovern, "Reuther- ism" would replace the more traditional Fitzsimmons-Meany- ism. For if the Dakotan wins, he will name United Auto Workers (UAW) militant president, Leonard Woodcock, Secretary of Labor -- or someone the auto union chief designates as his surrogate. That's the word from one of the most authoritative of the McGovern interlocking inner circles.

For McGovern this would mean doing what comes naturally. Most have forgotten that, until the final hours of the Democratic National Convention, McGovern's managers, then in full and cool possession and control, insisted that Woodcock would be the Vice Presidential candidate. That was to offset Meany's holy war against the Dakotan.

And it has rarely been reported that Bill Dodds, the auto union's skilled veteran Washington lobbyist, was swiftly named executive director of the Democratic National Committee. That was to offset Meany's neutrality and supply the Democrats with as much instant political machinery and expertise as possible to offset the anticipated massive labor defection.

All this is one of the most significant by- plays of this lusterless campaign. Few realize the importance of the Secretary of Labor post. Few realize that the "bread" of America, all Americans, all professionals, management, corporate executives, and white and blue collar workers, is sharply affected by the powers in the Labor Secretary's hands. Whoever he is, should he want to move hard and tough with the backing of the President, he can crush a business, an industry, or a union -- or make a powerful national figure out of any labor leader he chooses.

And in '73 and '74 this becomes triply meaningful. There's been some reporting of the upcoming labor- management negotiations -- which could shake this nation, which could escalate inflation, which could unleash waves of strikes. Some have mentioned the coming (September) auto contract expiration confrontation between Woodcock's union and the whole industry.

But nowhere can I find warning of the simultaneous expiration of all 14 national railroad labor agreements midnight, June 30, 1973. This is the first such common expiration date in rail history.

This could heat up a summer already expected to be one of the hottest in recent decades.

Should George McGovern get in, wage and price controls go out. Recently Sargent Shriver laid it on the line when he said: "We're going to dump that Pay Board when we get in office." McGovern constantly has said he'd wipe it out along with the Cost of Living Council.

And there's no doubt of McGovern's loyalty to the big auto union which has been providing not only expertise but a pulsating political machine developed by the late Walter Reuther during the frenetic '40s.

Again, Shriver laid it on the line to an Auto Workers' gathering:

"Whether you like the way George McGovern looks, or whether you like the way I talk, remember that in 1973 labor will be involved in negotiations again; in 1976 labor will be involved in negotiations. The man in the White House can either be friendly, open and dispassionate to your interests or he can be Richard Nixon -- against your interests."

The inference is as obvious as the attack on Dick Nixon. Shriver here pledged White House support of the auto union's demands in a critical confrontation -- the nature of which can be seen in the shrewd hit- and- run strikes with which the UAW is hitting General Motors central supply system's strategic plants.

Thus, should Woodcock become the White House's house labor leader, he will carry in with him some sort of coalititon or alliance of unions resembling the old Congress of Industrial Organization (CIO) which was launched by massive rolling demonstrations and plant seizures coupled with political action. Woodcock basically is a Fabian Socialist. Reuther talked like one but bargained like an old-fashioned business agent.

Should Dick Nixon win, and "Fitz" and Meany stay in the fold, they will become to the Republican party what Old King Coal, the late John L. Lewis (in the beginning), and the militant unions were to Franklin Roosevelt and his successors for 40 years. And with the exception of the Eisenhower years -- this combine won for 40 years. And actually, the record shows that Ike was not really an exception.

And Dick Nixon believes he can turn his new combine into the "new majority."

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON-- The story of Mrs. Harry Merica of Naked Creek, Va., is a story of how America's bureaucracy can neglect the people it is supposed to serve.

Mrs. Merica is a spunky, mountain woman in her late 40s. When Hurricane Agnes ripped through Naked Creek last summer, the floods wiped out a wooden footbridge that connected Naked Creek to the outside world.

Mrs. Merica was the hardest hit. She was forced to carry her two disabled children on her back every day across a small, makeshift bridge which had been hastily constructed upstream. Mrs. Merica made this dangerous trek so her children could catch the school bus on highway 609 across the creek from her home.

After two months of this, Virginia officials finally heard about Mrs. Merica's plight.

Unfortunately, the state didn't fix the original footbridge or begin construction of a badly needed concrete highway bridge. Instead, incredibly, the state took the two children away from the despairing Mrs. Merica.

Both children are handicapped with muscular dystrophy. The Virginia State Nursing Home in Charlottesville, with typical bureaucratic reasoning, concluded that a safe bridge across the creek was essential to the children's welfare and, therefore, that Mrs. Merica did not provide a proper home for her children.

Of course, it's up to the government, not Mrs. Merica, to provide the bridge. But for seven years, we are told, state and local authorities have squabbled over who should build it.

Mrs. Merica's local minister George Shivers is trying to persuade federal authorities to act. He has talked to Virginia's Sen. Harry Byrd and to the Transportation Department. But so far no solution is in sight.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Merica's neighbors continue to shake their heads. Their attitude toward the government was expressed by one neighbor, who told us laconically: "The government doesn't make the rain. It doesn't make the sun. It doesn't grow my farm. And it doesn't affect me."

Despite a federal court ruling that nursing home files should be open to the public, Social Security Commissioner Robert Ball has brazenly suppressed information on the quality of nursing homes where many older Americans spend their last years.

It's common knowledge in the health industry that some of these facilities are unsanitary firetraps. This is information, obviously, that the public is entitled to know.

The 4,500 nursing homes that receive Medicare money must pass federal inspection. This usually isn't too difficult; routine approval is given if the homes are in "substantial compliance" with federal standards.

The nursing home inspection reports, however, are never released. The taxpayers, who paid for the inspections, can't find out which homes are safe and clean.

For three years, an enterprising investigative reporter, Mal Schechter, has battled with Social Security to gain access to inspection reports on nursing homes, hositals and clinical laboratories.

He bumped into a brick wall at Social Security. So Schechter enlisted the help of a Ralph Nader attorney, Ron Plesser, and filed suit under the Freedom of Information Act. They argued that an old Social Security law, which protects the privacy of individuals, shouldn't be used to hide nursing home deficiencies.

Federal Judge Joseph C. Waddy agreed and ordered the release of 15 reports requested by Schechter. Reporters assumed this settled their right to nursing home information. But they didn't reckon with the willy ways of the bureaucrats.

Commissioner Bell has chosen to interpret Judge Waddy's decision as an order to release only the specific reports requested by Schechter. If reporters want to see other inspection records, they, too, must go to court.

This amazing cover- up policy has been put in writing. "The Department of Health, Education and Welfare, in responding to future requests for disclosures of similar documents, will be guided by its present regulations prohibiting disclosure," states the directive.

"This means that, for the present, the Department of Justice will oppose any further efforts to obtain court orders for the disclosure of nursing home survey reports that have already been prepared."

Footnote: A Social Security spokesman candidly admitted that the agency is treading water to see what happens. They note that a case similar to Schechter's is pending before federal court in northern California and they hope it will be decided in their favor. They also point out that a bill governing access to their records recently passed Congress. The new law, however, will open the records at some future date and wouldn't permit public access to reports of previous inspections.

Viet Cong Pledge To Respect All Provisions Of Treaty

SAIGON (AP) — The Viet Cong pledged today to "absolutely respect and carry out all provisions" of the Paris peace agreement worked out by the United States and North Vietnam, and declared there would be "no liquidation" of opposing forces in South Vietnam.

At the same time, President Nguyen Van Thieu placed South Vietnam's armed forces on a general alert as Communist troops launched a land-grab drive in anticipation of the cease-fire going into effect soon, allied officials said.

Reports circulated in Washington, meanwhile, that presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger's departure for Paris was imminent. There were indications that a new session between Kissinger and the North Vietnamese could come as early as this weekend. But White House press secretary Ronald Ziegler said: "As in the past, we will announce further meetings" when they occur.

In its first official statement on the peace package, the Viet Cong's Liberation Radio said responsible Viet Cong representatives "will immediately conduct negotiations with the present Saigon administration to settle in concert together the internal problems of South Vietnam.

"These will be settled on the basis of equality, mutual respect, and nonliquidation of each other.

"We have every good will attitude necessary to end the war, restore peace, eradicate all hatred and anger, realize national concord, and together heal our war wounds, unite with each other, love and care for each other, and to live together in happiness and prosperity."

The pledge to abide by the terms of the Paris agreement came at the end of a long statement that started with a declaration that the United States must sign the pact if it wanted an end to the Vietnam war. The statement also accused both Saigon and Washington of "treacherous maneuvers threatening the entire question of peace in Vietnam," and said unless the agreement was signed by Tuesday, military attacks in South Vietnam would be intensified.

Sources said Communist command documents captured in the Saigon region had ordered Viet Cong troops to divide into small groups and infiltrate into hamlets and villages with the purpose of setting up propaganda machinery for a ceasefire, harassing government troops and establishing a Viet Cong presence.

Across South Vietnam, Communist troops carried out more than 100 shelling and terror attacks for the third successive day, the Saigon command said, the most since the 1968 Tet offensive.

The Da Nang area was shelled before dawn for the second time in four days. Nearly 30 rockets hit in and around the air base.

In Washington, meanwhile, Nixon administration officials were maintaining confidence about an approaching settlement, saying they expect clashing public statements from each party as negotiating reached a climax.

That stance was repeated Friday as Hanoi kept up its insistence that the agreement, which calls for a cease-fire in place and withdrawal of U.S. forces and release of prisoners of war within 60 days, be signed by Tuesday.

A North Vietnamese spokesman in Paris, Nguyen Thanh Le, told newsmen Hanoi negotiators would be willing to meet with Kissinger again, but said there were no remaining questions to be resolved before the agreement was signed.

Announcing on Thursday that "peace is at hand," Kissinger said about six or seven issues remained to be settled. But he added he thought they could be cleared up with another negotiating session and left it to Hanoi to set a date.

Administration officials indicated they had yet to receive a signal from Hanoi, saying they did not take Le's statement as the official North Vietnamese position.

Also on Friday, President Nixon met in Washington with visiting Laotian Premier Souvanna Phouma and the Laotian leader afterwards voiced hope the U.S.-North Vietnamese negotiations would produce a final accord.

In another Washington development, Pentagon officials said a quick Vietnam peace settlement does not mean there will be a "dramatic reduction" in this year's defense budget. A spokesman said military stocks used to counter North Vietnam's spring offensive would have to be replaced and funds also would be needed to cover withdrawal costs.

Fines Assessed In Bloomfield Court

BLOOMFIELD — In the absence of Judge Koss W. Blomeyer, Prosecuting Attorney Paul McGhee assessed fines in Magistrate Court Thursday morning.

Luther S. Hamilton of Parma pleaded guilty to a charge of careless and imprudent driving and was fined $15 and court costs.

Marvin David Lafferty of Bloomfield, charged with possession of intoxicating liquor by a minor, pleaded guilty and was fined $50 and court costs.

Edwin Dewayne Robinson of Advance pleaded guilty to the charge of possession of intoxicating liquor by a minor and was fined $50 and court costs.

Dale Lee McClanahan of Dexter pleaded guilty to the charge of public intoxication and was fined $10 and court costs.

Norman Richard Cruse of Essex pleaded guilty to a charge of driving while intoxicated and improper vehicle registration and was fined $110 and costs.

David Taylor, charged with possession of intoxicating liquor by a minor, pleaded guilty and was fined $50 and costs.

Richard Lee Deason pleaded guilty to a charge of passing in face of oncoming traffic and was fined $15 and costs.

Robert Lee Johnson of Essex, charged with careless and imprudent driving, pleaded guilty and was fined $15 and costs.

Those paying speeding fines and court costs were John Reynolds, $25, and Howard R. Painter of Sikeston, $10.

POW Wives Take Wait And See Stand

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (AP) — The wives and children of the men who are being held prisoner in North Vietnam now are talking about the two things they considerable inseparable — peace and politics.

"Isn't it strange," said Charlotte Christian, whose husband has been a POW for seven years, "how all the wives are saying, even with the prospect of a cease-fire near, 'let's wait and see.'

"Not one of them is trusting," she added in an interview, referring to the aprroximately 21 women in this coastal town with its nearby Naval base, whose husbands are among America's more than 1,500 prisoners or those missing in action.

Mrs. Christian, whose 32year-old husband, Cmdr. Michael D. Christian was shot down in April 1967, said:

"Even if the cease-fire is signed Tuesday, you won't find any one of us making plans for our husband's homecoming. We just don't want to be let down any more. I'm sorry it has taken so long," she said. "Sorry we had to sit and wait until the end of President Nixon's term of office.

I don't think Nixon needs this to be elected. But maybe he needs peace in order to be elected president with the greatest majority ever..."

"But," she added,"if he can't pull it (the cease-fire) off, he's going to have to come to my house and tell my children."

Only the oldest of their three children, 13-year-old Debbie, really remembers her father.

Mrs. Christian says she hasn't decided how she will vote in the presidential election.

"When I get into that booth to vote, I'll vote for whoever has helped the POWs the most. This may be selfish, but I feel the government has forced me into being selfish."

Veterans Hospital patients received a surprise gift on Veterans Day when they were given $1.00 bills by the American War Mothers. The organization calls this their "Christmas in October" for the patients. Several Chapters from the area served by the Poplar Bluff VA Hospital donated the money, which was given to the patients by ladies of the Hawthrone Chapter from Poplar Bluff. Claudie G. Sloan, a recently discharged Army Veteran from Sikeston, Mo., is shown receiving his gift. Thief Makes Heavy Haul

MOREHOUSE — Dickerson Laundromat in Morehouse was robbed of about $90 in quarters Thursday night.

The money was taken from two dryers. City Marshal Slim Rodgers said keys were apparently used to open the dryers.

Report One Arrested

CHARLESTON — Police reported today the arrest of Cleon Henry Milton, 24, of East Prairie on a charge of driving while intoxicated. He is scheduled to appear in City Court Monday.

Charges Filed Against Smith

CHARLESTON — Charges of breaking, entering and stealing were filed Friday afternoon against Sylvester Smith, 21, Jessie Hull, 19, and a juvenile, all of Charleston in connection with the break- in early Friday morning of Stader's Laundromat on East Marshall Street.

Approximately $34 was stolen from coin- operated machines. A $250 machine was damaged beyond repair and a soap machine was damaged.

Smith and Hull will appear before Magistrate T. J. Brown Jr. Thursday. Bond has been set at $1,500 each.

Burlison Recieves Appreciation Plaque From Exploring Club

An appreciation plaque was presented to Rep. Bill D. Burlison, 10th District Congressman from Cape Girardeau, by members of the Exploring Club at Holiday Inn this morning during their annual banquet.

Burlison spoke to the club about leadership and its effects, which he said falls into two categories, vacational and community.

"Nothing makes a person more miserable than making a living at a job he doesn't like," Burlison said.

In closing, Burlison told club members to work hard at their projects, and, in the outcome, they will be satisfied with themselves.

Ken Myles of Cape Girardeau, vice chairman of the Exploring Club said that the main purpose of the club is to help members study careers in which they are interested.

Sixty Dead In French Air Crash

CLERMONT-FERRAND, France (AP) — Sixty persons were killed Friday night when a domestic French airliner with 68 aboard crashed into a wooded hill in Central France and burst into pieces, authorities said.

All five crew members perished. Everyone aboard was believed to be French.

There was no explosion or fire.

The eight survivors, who included a five- year- old boy, were carried by stretcher to tractors and taken to ambulances parked on a road.

Rescue efforts were blocked for two hours when a boulder rolled onto the forest trail and blocked movement of the tractors. The survivors were hospitalized but initial reports indicated none was in danger.

The four- engine turboprop, a British- made Vickers Viscount, was owned by Air- Inter. It was en route from Lyon to Clermont-Ferrand.

Ground stations lost radio contact with the plane about 10 minutes before it was due to land.

Airport authorities at Clermont said the Viscount flew over the airport and then, with radio contact cut, made a complete turnabout for unknown reasons.

Rescue teams, including the National Police, cut through dense forest to reach the wreckage.

One of the survivors, 55-year- old Marcel Delcroix, said he often flew from Lyon and "this time I had the impression that something was wrong. I told the young woman sitting alongside me. I felt the plane was going to crash. I undid my belt and was thrown out. I waited for help for about six hours."

Five- year- old Sylvain Montonnex fought back tears and repeatedly told rescuers that he wasn't hurt.

In another air disaster, five U.S. Air Force men from Ohio were killed Friday when an Air Force plane carshed in southern France en route to Athens, Greece.

The plane, a four- engine C119, was being delivered to Greece from Lockbourne Air Force Base in Ohio as part of the U.S. military assistance program. It crashed near the village of Aulen.

Refreshments of cup cakes and punch were served.

Ann Landers

Parents Ask Only To Know Missing Children Are "O.K."

Dear Ann Landers: I am a woman of 50 with a very troubled mind and an unhappy husband. Ten years ago I had a complete hysterectomy. After the surgery I took hormone shots and the doctor said I would be fine. Well, Ann, I lost all desire for sex after that operation and my life has been far from fine.

My husband has done nothing but complain. He says it's all in my head. He went to my doctor and had a talk with him about my lack of interest in sexual relations. When my husband came home he said, "Well, the doctor backed me up. He says your physical condition is excellent and there is no reason why you can't be as good a bed partner as you were twenty years ago.

I don't know whose neck I'd like to wring first, my husband's or the doctor's. Please tell that sex maniac I am married to that it IS normal for a woman to lose interest in sex after this kind of operation.--- Winston- Salem

Dear Win: I'm afraid you're going to want to wring my neck, too. I can't tell your husband any such thing. I hope you will go back to your doctor and talk with him. It may be that you need a little counseling to help you get back on the track. The psychological effect of a hysterectomy may be responsible for your lack of interest, but there is no physical reason for it.

Dear Ann Landers: I know you are not running a Bureau For Missing Persons or a Bulletin Board For Broken Families, but I do hope you will print this letter for the benefit of the thousands of young people who left home and whose parents do not know where they are.

Please, Ann, tell these kids that if they would just drop a postcard or send a collect telegram or place a collect phone call, or have a friend who is passing through town, give us a two word message, "I'm O.K." it would make all the difference in the world.

To every runaway boy or girl who left without saying goodbye, I say this:

We would not insist that you come back, or even ask you to if you didn't want to. All we need to know is that you are alive and well. It would be like a ton of stone lifted from our hearts. Please let us hear from you soon.--- Mother and Dad

Here's the message-- and I hope and pray it provides the little shove that some of those kids need.

Dear Ann Landers: I had to laugh when I read that letter from the woman in Tucson who said cat- haters are not to be trusted-- that there is something sneaky and underhanded about them. The writer also went on to say a cat- lover should never marry a person who does not share his love for cats. She added, "Cat lovers should marry each other and they will have a good life together."

The reason I found this so funny is because my aunt and uncle were both cat lovers. They never had any children, but they had 11 cats in the house. When they traveled they hired a person to stay in their house and look after the cats. After 15 years of marriage they separated. The result was the bitterest divorce on record. . .and the biggest problem was settling the custody of the cats.

If one had been a cat lover and the other a cat hater it would have been easy. So it appears the advice from Tucson was wrong. At least it didn't work in Dayton.--- Witness To The Mess

Dear Wit: Thanks for my laugh for the day. I'm with you.

Is an upcoming wedding driving you bananas? Ann Landers' comprehensive booklet, "The Bride's Guide," gives you the facts from the initial announcement to the last bill and who should pay it.

Collins Judge For Band Day

FAYETTE — Keith Collins of Sikeston, piano store owner and retired high school band director, was one of four judges for the ninth annual Band Day today at Central Methodist College.

The event got under way at 9 a.m. with a special parade through the streets of Fayette, followed by field competition.

Trophies were to be presented just prior to kickoff of Central Methodist-Graceland College football game this afternoon, and the band with the most points will per form at halftime, along with the CMC Marching Eagles.

Twenty- two high school bands were to participate in three categories; small, medium and large.

Approximately 2,000 students were expected, along with more than 100 parents and chaperones. An estimated 50 buses were used to transport the bands to the CMC campus.

Keith House, director of bands of CMC, is in charge of this year's event.

KING MIDAS, portrayed by Edwin Child, right, is amazed as the mysterious Stranger, Dino Almond, gives him the "Magic Touch" in one of the scenes from the National Children's Theatre production of "King Midas and the Golden Touch". The famous classic Greek fable will be presented Monday at 4 p.m. at Central High School auditorium in Cape Girardeau by Delta Delta Delta alumna.

Delta Delta Presents "King Midas"

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Delta Delta Delta alumna are sponsoring "King Midas and the Golden Touch" Monday at 7 p.m.

The dramatization of the Greek legend is renowned for the magical, golden touch of King Midas, which causes many hilarious experiences and teaches a subtle lesson about the consequences of greed. Child will direct and play the role of the king.

A product of the National Children's Theatre of New York and Dallas, the play will be presented in the Central High School auditorium by a cast of professional actors directed by Edwin Child.

"Young Arthur and Merlin the Magician" are scheduled in January and "Hansel and Gretel" in April. All of the plays are scaled to child- level, and they especially appeal to children five through 13.

Tickets are available at the door, or by contacting Mrs. Timothy Ruddy, 1222 Normal, phone 334-5427; or Mrs. John Mark Scully, 444 Washington, phone 335-2990.

Season tickets are available for all three performances.

Pictured above is Burton Brown of New Madrid, Soil Scientist, mapping soils for use in conservation plan. Location, Sikeston Ridge in Scott County.

Mapping Gives Best Soil Use Per Acre

The purpose of every comprehensive farm conservation program is to develop a farming plan that makes maximum productive use of every acre. It lets you farm at top capacity with a minimum loss of soil and water.

Your soil conservation district will provide a map as the first of soil, slope, degree of erosion, fertility, and general physical condition of land everywhere on your farm. It'll classify your land according to its capability which you will use as a guide in deciding what it can do and how it should be operated.

A soil map shows the different soil associations. A soil association is a landscape that has a distinctive proportional pattern of soils.

A soil map is useful to everyone. To the developer, the construction worker, and the farmer. A soils map tells you what the soil association is and gives the person interested unlimited information about the soil.

A soils map tells you the hazards that may exist in a profile of the soil. It tells you the hazards present whether it be wetness, droughtiness or erosion problems. It also tells you the % of field slope, the type of soil and the degree of erosion that has already occurred. A soils map tells you the capability classification of a certain soil. There are eight classes of soil, class one being the best and class eight being the least desirable.

A soils map is the most important part in planning a farm. If you have need for an area to be mapped contact your Soil Conservation Service in Scott County.

Fall Is Excellent , Liming Time

By JOHN GARRETT
Area Agronomy Specialist

Now is an excellent time to apply limestone for 1973 crops. Some people do not consider lime as part of their fertilizer program, but they should.

On many soils, the yield increase from fertilizer will depend on the pH. The term "pH" is used to denote the degree of acidity. The pH should be between 6.0 and 6.5 for optimum yield of most row crops grown in this area.

Yields are definitely being reduced on many soils with a pH of 5.5 or below. This is more critical on silt loam and sandy soils than on heavy clay soils.

If you have failed to keep your pH above 5.5, you're probably neither getting top yield nor top quality. Even though plenty of the essential nutrients are in the soil for top yields, they are fixed in the soil by complex chemical reactions and are not available. Aluminum, manganese and iron are much more available under acid conditions and generally reach toxic levels.

Agricultural lime does not correct acid soil conditions overnight. Lime should be applied six to 12 months before expecting results. If the pH is 4.5 or below, it will react sooner. Another reason farmers fail to get response the first year or two is improper mixing.

The best method of mixing is to plow one half of the lime down and disk the other in. Most of the time it is only disked and this only mixes lime 2 to 4 inches deep. Lime moves very slow in the soil, so if you don't break, don't expect the lime to correct the pH in the top seven inches for a couple of years.

Another reason for breaking the lime deep is to correct subsoil acidity. Generally subsoils are more acid than top soils. These acid subsoils reduce yields more than the top soil, especially in dry years. The only way to get lime deep is to plow it down with a moldboard plow with a big tractor. Chiseling will not get the job done.

Fall is an excellent time for plowing and preparing mixed and gumbo soils for next spring crosp. If lime, phosphate or potash are needed they should be applied and plowed down this fall. Fall plowing will also help bury weed seeds and disease organisms.

Why have farmers failed to soil test and lime? It isn't the cost because a soil test only costs about 10 cents or less per acre. The soil is tested for phosphorus, potassium, calcium, magnesium, organic matter, pH and lime requirement. It will give you a nutrient inventory of your soil. You will find out from this test if your fertilizer program should be changed.

The biggest reason farmers fail to soil test is because they keep putting the job off until it is too late. After crops are harvested is an ideal time to get samples.

The best reason for liming is that it increases net profit where needed. Two tons of lime per acre were applied to a soil with a pH of 4.0 on the Clifford Klutts farm in Dunklin County. The no- lime part of the field made 23 bushels of soybeans per acre, and the limed part made 32 bushels per acre. Increases such as this are common on acid soils. In addition to correcting acidity, lime supplies calcium and magnesium and increases the effectiveness of fertilizers.

Don't put it off; soil test and apply recommended lime and fertilizer this fall before the ground gets waterlogged.

Good Wildlife Management Needs Shrub Cover For Fence Rows

By JERRY T. HARLOW
District Conservationist

While no two kinds of wildlife have the same requirements for living, it is safe to say that all kinds need food, cover and water. To support a high wildlife population a farm must have a plentiful supply of good food close to cover that furnishes protection from enemies and weather. And it must be available in all seasons of the year.

Of three limiting factors food, cover and water - we can disregard water. Water is usually available in the form of moisture from berries, dew, or rain drops. Upland game does not require a supply of water as do big game species.

Cover should be in the form of live vegetation such as blackberry briers, autumn olive, sericea lespedeza, etc. Brushpiles are also good cover.

Food is probably the most important of factors. In our area there is enough food from late spring to fall, insects, wild-fruits, weed seeds, waste grain, nuts or green plants provide a good diet for small game.

The critical season is Winter, proper planning before winter arrives will yield great dividents. In most areas good food plots planted close to good cover will carry wildlife through critical periods.

Wildlife food plots and plantings are available through your Soil Conservation Service or Missouri Department of Conservation.

Families Eligible For Rural Housing Loans From FHA

Many additional families in Scott and Mississippi counties are now eligible for rural housing loans from Farmers Home Administration, FHA County Spuervisor Bobby R. Hicks reported today.

"In families where both husband and wife are employed and the wife is not the primary source of income, the change permits half the wife's gross income to be excluded in determining whether the total family income is within the maximum limit for loan eligiblity."

For example, if the husband's income is $6,000 and the wife earns $4,000, his entire income plus half his wife's income, or a total of $8,000 would be considered. This is within Missouri's moderate income level, so the family may be eligible for a loan.

Hicks stated this change was made in June, 1972, but not as many families have taken advantage of this change as was anticipated. Loans may be made to families who will buy or build homes in open country or towns of up to 10,000 population and who are not able to obtain credit from regular commercial sources.

Complete information is available from the FHA office in Sikeston, 106 E. Center St., on Monday mornings from 8 a.m. until noon.

Twenty acres of cabbages are now being harvested on the farm of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Myers and son, Larry, on Highway 25 south of Dexter. The Myers designed and built this platform which sits atop a tractor where the hand-cut cabbage is placed for grading and sacking. The cabbage is stacked on a higher platform until it is unloaded onto a truck at the end of the field. The Myers have 50 acres of cabbage on their 500-acre farm where they also raise wheat, corn, cotton and soybeans.

Soybean Outlook Good For Coming Year

By THOMAS A. BROWN JR.
Area Agronomy Specialist

BLOOMFIELD — Soybean prices are a matter of considerable concern and speculation among farmers in this area. A summary of a report - Outlook for Soybeans - released recently by extension agricultural economists at the University of Missouri - Columbia will probably be of interest to these people.

Soybean supplies for the next 12 months are expected to be approximately 120 million bushels above last year. A comparison of the indicated current supply situation compared to that of a year ago may be obtained as follows:

Production, 1971-72, 1,169 million bushes; 1972-73, million bushels estimated. carry over, 1971-72, 99, million bushels; 1972-73, 78 million bushels estimated; total supply, 1971-72, 1,268 million bushels, 1972-73, 1,378 million bushels estimated.

For the past three years, soybean consumption has been greater than production. Carryover is down to a very bare minimum which is also expected to be the case in September, 1973. This means that consumption during the next year will just about equal 1972 production. The reason - we simply do not have more beans to consume.

The yield improvement and increased acreage of beans harvested this year indicated in the estimated 1972 production in the above table will provide some much needed volume in an otherwise tight supply situation.

Export demand for soybeans has been strong in recent years and is expected to continue strong in 1973. Due to the previously mentioned increased supply, foreign markets are expected to continue to grow.

In addition to the 37 million bushel Russian purchase of soybeans announced last month, exports are expected to climb an addition 30 to 35 million bushels during the 1972-73 marketing year for a total of 485 million bushels.

Soybean crushings for the coming year are estimated to be about the same level as last year. While the demand for protein is strong, a weak oil market will dampen the demand for soybeans to some extent.

Soybean oil carryover is slightly higher than a year ago. This weakness in oil has placed a downward pressure on soybean prices causing soybean meal to be the strong factor in bean prices. This situation will continue into 1973.

Farm prices for soybeans are expected to be higher during the coming year. Bean prices at most country markets in Missouri, including Southeast Missouri rail points, are now in the $3.25 per bushel range. This would seem to sit the lower range of bean prices for the months ahead.

The upper range of prices will be established by any upward movement in oil and meal prices. Most soybean authorities are predicting that prices for the coming year will average about 10 per cent higher than last year.

This would mean that the yearly price would average in the neighborhood of $3.30 per bushel compared to the seasonal average price of slightly above $3 per bushel last year.

Indians Collar Dogs

JACKSON — The biggest puzzle in the second half of Friday night's football game was not figuring out who was winning. It was figuring out who carried the ball. The Jackson football field, not the best under normal conditions, was a quagmire after an afternoon of light rain and numbers were obliterated halfway into the first quarter.

Jackson scored a couple of touchdowns in the first half, while you could still see the yardlines, then held on for a miserable, muddy, 13-0 Northern Division win over the Sikeston Bulldogs.

It was homecoming for Jackson, and the fans stuck around for most of the ballgame, at least the Jackson fans did. But, most of the Sikeston fans were gone by the third quarter, or at least by early in the fourth as it became apparent that the slow, plodding offense of the Indians was going to consume so much time there would be no chance of catching up.

Although Sikeston ran more plays than Jackson, 42 to 40, Jackson dominated the second half. One time the Tribe held the ball for six minutes in the third quarter, only to have Sikeston hold on a crucial, fourth-down play on the Bulldog five-yard line. Sikeston did lose the war of the statistics, gaining just 145 yards to 256 for the Indians.

The main reason Sikeston lost was the absence of its passing attack. All year passing has carried Sikeston offensively. Now the Dogs finally go their running game going consistently and the passing game failed to click.

Conditions of the field completely shut off Sikeston's throwing game. Senior quarterback Bill Colwick was unable to complete any of three attempts. Two of the three were intercepted and the third was touched by three Jackson defensive backs before it fell incomplete.

The running attack took on a new light for the Bulldogs. Tight end John Farris was moved to one of the setback slots in order to add some beef to the backfield. Although the 190-pounder performed well, Sikeston's most consistent runner was speedster Curtis Bean. The senior tailback plowed through the deep mud, showing surprising power on his way to an even 100 yards rushing.

Considering the terrible conditions, it was easily the sprinter's finest night of the year. Except for a slight knee injury in the third period, the Sikeston tailback might have approached the 150 mark. He had 80 yards at half. Farris, although obviously new to the position, gave the Sikeston offense some badly needed straight-ahead power.

A couple of Sikeston players striving for school records were set back a notch.

Colwick is still 27 completions shy of a school record, a record he already holds. He is also 260 yards short of a record for passing yards. The record of 1,350 is presently held by Jerry Throgmorton.

Glen Guttenfelder was shut out in the contest. So, the mud accomplished something that even the great Cape Girardeau Central defensive backs couldn't do — hold the fleet split end without any catches. Guttenfelder has 35 receptions on the year, eight short of Steve Ferrell's record.

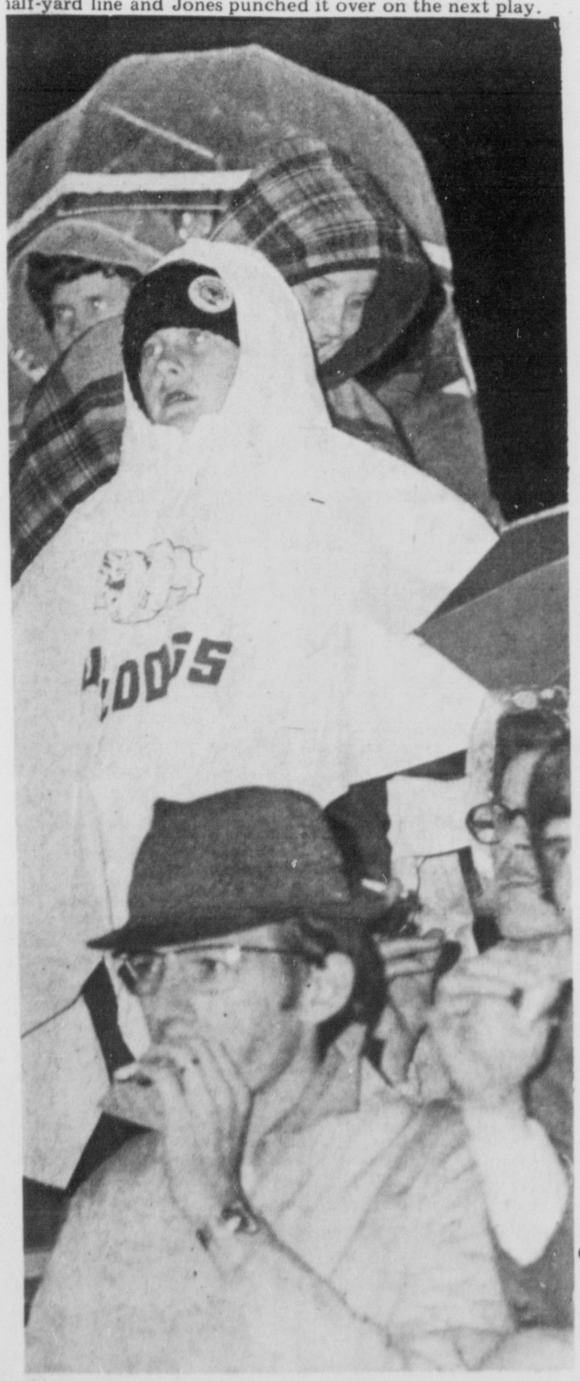
Sikeston kicked off to open the contest. Jackson was unable to move the ball and punted. Sikeston took the punt and, behind Bean's running, moved the ball to the Jackson 35. However, on fourth down, Colwick faded to pass and, just as he grew, was hit by a charging Jackson defensive lineman. The ball was jarred loose and Jackson recovered in good field position on Sikeston's side of the 50.

From there, Jackson moved the ball very well. The key play on the drive was a 16-yard pass from Mark Jones, the Jackson quarterback, to his favorite receiver, Terry Langston. On the very next play, Loren Sides sprinted 16 yards for the first score of the game.

The game's final touchdown came a few moments before halftime. With the field becoming unrecognizable, Jackson began to ram the ball down Sikeston's throat. The defense gave ground, but grudgingly.

All of a sudden, after passing just once before in the first half, Jones faded and threw a long pass toward Langston. The defensive back had Langston covered like a blanket, but pulled up short to try for the interception. The ball evaded his fingertips by inches and Langston made an outstanding catch.

The 38-yard bomb put the ball on the Sikeston half-yard line and Jones punched it over on the next play.



The rather cool rain made football- watching uncomfortable for some football fans, but Hal Butler, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Butler, did remember to bring along his official "Bulldog pancho" for some protection from the elements.

Panthers Prevail

By FRED COPELAND

PARMA — The Lilbourn Panthers relied on speed and a 28- point second quarter to roll to a 79-50 victory over Matthews in the championship clash of the Parma B-team tournament Friday night.

Lilbourn, capturing the title for the fourth consecutive year, opened a commanding 44-22 lead in the first half. In the third quarter, Lilbourn came out firing and again outscored the Pirates, 15-6. In the fourth quarter, the Matthews quintet finally began to find the range and outscored the Panthers, 22-20.

Lilbourn placed four men in double figures with Ernest McFerren, Herman Thompson and Detral Treadwell scoring 12 points each to lead the Panther attack and Johnny Ash adding 10. Ken Lape scored 16 and David Kennedy and Scotty Bewley collected 12 each to pace the Pirates.

In the consolation game, fans got a taste of excitement as the Pirates of parma won a squeaker, 55-53 over a stubborn Bernie quintet. The Pirates forged a 26-18 halftime lead and appeared ready to coast in to victory, but a fourth quarter rally by the Mules fell just short and kept the fans on the edge of their seats until the final buzzer.

Donny Thatch poured in 22 points to lead the Parma attack. Ricky Barnes and Clarence Office added 13 and 10 points respectively to help the host Pirates to victory. Bernie was paced by Ricky Moody with 19 and Joe Steuver with 12.

The scores:

PARMA (55)

Barnes 13, Ramsey 8, Kisk 2, Office 10, Donny Tatch 22. FG-23; FT-9; PF-14.

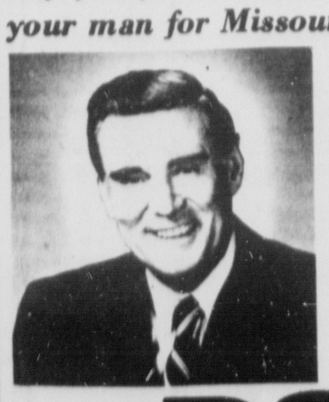
How Do YOU Feel About
Mental Health?

"One out of 10 Missourians are affected in some way by mental health problems . . . . it is vital that we speed up the great advances we have been making in mental health programs." That's how Ed Dowd feels about our mental health programs! He also says, "It is extremely important that those who work in our mental health programs be paid more adequate, competitive wages." If that's the way you feel about mental health , then Ed Dowd's your man for Missouri's Governor.



Sure, the people of Missouri want a change. But we all know a change for change's sake isn't the answer. The real answer lies with a mature man of Ed Dowd's unquestioned good character. The son and grandson of policemen . . . a father who understands . . . a man who didn't inherit a thing except an honest respect for the working man, a compassion for those less fortunate and a sincere willingness to help. We can trust Ed Dowd to do the right thing for all the people. Be sure November 7. Vote for Ed Dowd, Democrat for Governor.

Cowboys Drop From Super Bowl Champs To Just An Average Team On The Street

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

For five weeks, Roger Staubach has been on the sidelines watching his Dallas Cowboys tumble from the lofty perch of Super Bowl champion to the position of just another National Football League team.

With Staubach calling the signal's last year—albeit Coach Tom Landry's shuttied-in signals—the Cowboys won their final seven regular-season games. Then, en route to the Super Bowl, they beat Minnesota and San Francisco.

In this year's preseason play, though, a shoulder separation kayoed Staubach for what many observers felt would be most of the season, if not all of it. But while Craig Morton took over as the Cowboys' No. 1 signal-caller and directed them to a 4-2 record, Roger the Dodger mended quickly.

And during the past week, following the 24-20 loss to Washington that knocked the Cowboys out of first place in the National Conference East and into a second-place tie with the New York Giants, Dallas activated Staubach.

Landry insists Morton is still his No. 1 quarterback—but there's a good chance that Staubach will be shouting out the cadence before Monday night's nationally televised game against Detroit ends.

The game is a crucial one for both teams. The Cowboys must win to keep pace with either the Redskins or Giants, who play each other in New York on Sunday. And the Lions, with a Landry of their own, a quarterback named Greg, are currently tied with Green Bay atop the NFC's jumbled Central Division. The Packers host Minnesota at home.

Sunday's other games have Los Angeles at Oakland, Kansas City at San Diego, Miami at Baltimore, San Francisco at Atlanta, New England opposing the Jets in New York, Cleveland at Denver, Pittsburgh at Buffalo, Houston at Cincinnati, Philadelphia at New Orleans and Chicago at St. Louis.

Cats Run Wild

DEXTER — Coach Clyde Vaughn's Bearcats ran roughshod over the Chaffee Red Devils here Friday night, 35-0.

Backfisch started a big night by slogging over from 10 yards out in the first quarter. In the second quarter, it was Backfisch again as he punched in from two yards. Trammell ran over for a two- point play. Backfisch scored again before the end of the first half by rambling 30 yards, with McRoy booting the extra point.

In the third quarter, Brown darted over from 40 yards out. McRoy kicked the extra point. Allen England later intercepted a Chaffee desperation pass and ran it back 80 yards for a score. McRoy added the extra point.

Backfisch ran 120 yards in 15 carries, while his counterpart, Burnett, carried 11 times for 93 yerds.

Dexter plays Kennett next week.

Tigers Rally

CARUTHERSVILLE — Clarence Cunningham scored a touchdown from four yards out and moments later bolted over for a two- point conversion to pad coach Ron Wene's Caruthersville Tigers' gridiron victory Friday night, 28-22.

The Bengals had to battle from behind all night against their Luxora, Ark., visitors before winning the game in the waning minutes of the contest.

Quarterback Joe Cagle sneaked in from one yard out three times during the encounter, erasing a 14-0 Luxora lead in the first half with a pair of TDs, then putting them within two points of their Arkansas visitors with a fourth quarter score, 22-20.

Luxora led 14-0, 22-14 and 22-20, but yielded to the Tigers' late charge.

Tribe Romp

HAYTI - Gideon went home a defeated team Friday night as Hayti came out on top with a score of 28- 6 in a non- league football battle.

Gideon made its only score in the first quarter when a Bulldog player picked up a fumble and carried 50 yards for a touchdown.

From there, it was all Hayti's game. Randy Gardner scored first for Hayti on a 10- yard run. The pass to Jerome Maxey from Gardner was good for the two- point conversion.

In the second quarter, it was Danny White on a six- yard run and Gardner again with the two- point conversion to bring the score to 16- 6 at halftime.

Hayti returned from intermission to score twice more while keeping Gideon scoreless in the last half.

Gardner got Hayti going with a touch-down run of eight yards. The extra point attempt failed and the score stood at 22- 6 after three quarters.

William Brown made Hayti's final score in the last quarter on a 30- yard run.

Danny White was a standout ball carrier for Hayti with 82 yards in 16 carries.

Norrid Stars

MALDEN - A two- yard run by Terry in the second quarter was all that was needed to give Malden a Friday night home victory over East Prairie, 6-0.

It was a rainy night and both teams struggled to get something going. Malden's score was just 20 seconds before halftime, giving the Green Wave the edge they needed.

Coming back in the second half, both teams kept up the battle, but to no avail.

The victory put Malden's record at 4-1 in Southern Division play.

Mules Kick

POPLAR BLUFF — The host Mules carved out a 29-0 victory over the Charleston Bluejays in Northern Division play Friday night.

It was a John Casey to Hurley Rainey scoring pass to start the game in earnest, after the Bluff defense turned in a safety in the first quarter. The extra point was missed to leave the Mule lead at 8-0.

Tutti Hayes came through in the second quarter with a 45- yard scoring run, and Sanders kicked the extra point to make it 15-0 at halftime.

The second half started with a bang as Hayes ran the kickoff 70 yards to the Charleston 18. Two plays later it was Hayes all the way on a 14- yard run. Sanders booted the extra point. Later in the third quarter the same twosome scored again, Hayes from 12 yards out on a run and Sanders splitting the uprights.

First downs told the tale with P.B. rolling up 12 and Charleston collecting only three.

Players Soul-Search About Early Jackie Robinson Days

NEW YORK (AP) — It leaves me with a deep guilt complex," Hank Greenberg said. "A guilt of insensitivity."

Greenberg, home run star of the Detroit Tigers in the 1930s and 1940s and later general manager of the Cleveland Indians, was doing a bit of soulsearching—along with other white baseball personalities—at the funeral Friday for Jackie Robinson.

"Looking back now," he said in the crowded VIP reception room shortly before funeral services at the Riverside Church, "I see where I was wrong.

"I dealt with black baseball players as simply baseball players. I felt I was fair to them. But I never looked behind their social structure or showed any concern for their personal lives outside of baseball."

Greenberg was general manager of the Indians from 1950 through 1958.

"I remember the many times that we—the white players— would check into some fashionable hotel and see the black players standing there waiting for a jitney to take them to some neighborhood boarding house.

"We didn't think anything about it. We just thought about the guys as players and the times dictated that we go our separate ways. Now all of us, I think, are a little ashamed.

"I remember checking in at Baltimore in 1955 and the thought suddenly hit me. 'What the heck is happening?' I asked myself. I told the hotel that from now on our team would have to be quartered together or we'd go to another hotel.

"Baltimore, I think, was the last major league city to integrate."

Bill Veeck, a baseball innovator who headed the St. Louis Browns and Indians, said the game still was dragging its feet in recognition of its players, regardless of color of skin.

"Did you look in the dugouts during the World Series?" he asked. "The white players were all sitting together. The black players were sitting apart."

"It was Veeck who brought the first Negro player, Larry Doby, into the American League while he was at Cleveland.

"I did what I could, but progress is slow. People are not quick to change. There is still much to be done."

The Atlanta Braves' Hank Aaron, who is challenging Babe Ruth's home run record of 714, was another of the leading baseball personalities attending the Robinson funeral.

"I remember the first time I ever met Jackie," Aaron recalled. "I was just breaking in at Milwaukee, 20 years old, in 1954. He taught me a lot. One day he was on third and I was playing second. He darted as if to go home on an infield out. I cocked my aim to thorw. He stopped. I relaxed a moment. Before I knew it, he was sliding into home.

"He was a fierce competitor. He told me, 'You don't play baseball once a week. You play every day. First thing you do is try to get on first. Then on second. Then third and then home.'

What a man. Every time he put on a uniform, he went out to win."

Take Another Look at Dr. Lamb.

NEA Medical Columnist Lawrence Lamb, M.D. receives well over 1,000 letters from his readers every week. They come from small towns and metropolitan areas, from newspaper readers as well as editors, from politicians and high government officials. Even physicians write to Dr. Lamb for information and advice.

Since 1949, when he received his medical degree from the University of Kansas School of Medicine, he has collected the kinds of awards and recognition reserved for the nation's most distinguished physicians and has published more than 120 books, essays, monographs and book chapters.

Among the patients he has attended Dr. Lamb counts Lyndon B. Johnson as senator, vice president and president.

Between 1955 and 1966 the specialist in internal medicine (with a subspecialty in cardiology) was a civilian scientist with the U.S. Air Force. As chief of medicine and chief of the clinical sciences, Dr. Lamb set up and carried out the examinations for the Gemini and Apollo astronauts. He also served as consultant for the Mercury project and trained the physicians who monitored America's first manned space flights.

Because of this and other credentials covering a broad range of medical practice, Dr. Lamb, a former professor of medicine at Baylor University, is a frequent lecturer at major medical schools and important scientific gatherings.

"I believe," says Dr. Lamb, "that I have a responsibility to the general public who really shouldn't be inflicted with two-dollar medical words when explanations can be made in clear, concise English. My job, as I see it, is to shed some light on what is surely a person's most prized possession, his health."

IT'S NICE TO KNOW we aren't the only ones with parking problems. This jam-packed lot, which would do credit to any American city of respectable size, is in Monthlery, France.

Nebraskan Must Reset 200 Clocks Tonight

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Julius Hornstein has quite a task facing him tonight.

While most Americans will be resetting the clocks in their homes to conform with the annual time change, Hornstein will be going from room to room in his north Omaha home, resetting some 200 antique and modern time pieces, ranging in size from a huge Grandfather clock to a tiny 18th century watch that is set with a key.

Hornstein is something of a rarity among clock watchers. He doesn't just collect them, he keeps them all running. On time, all the time.

When you see his collection you're willing to admit it would be a task to set them, but not all that difficult. That's when he explains the workings of some of his pieces.

Take one of the 160 clocks that cover the walls of a sideroom in his home. It was one of the first eight-day chime clocks, manufactured in Plymouth Hollow, Conn. (a place which Hornstein reports is no longer on the map) during the 1800s. Because of its delicate mechanisms, Hornstein can't simply grab "the big hand," and push it back an hour. It must be moved forward 11 hours, at fifteen minute intervals on the clock-face. At each stop, the chimes must be allowed to ring. Then it can be moved forward again. That's the way most of the delicate pieces must be handled.

There are some exceptions; like the tiny pendulum clock made in 1860. It was probably among the first alarm clocks invented. It must be wound and set with a key the size of the average persons thumbnail.

Hornstein has been buying time pieces for some 17 years. His collection includes dozens of Early American pieces, and others from Europe and Asia.

The Prayer
from the Upper Room

Rejoice in the Lord alway: and again I say, Rejoice. (Phillippians 4:4)

PRAYER: Father, forgive us for too often seeing only our problems and failing to see the adventure and growth they offer. We want to have the optimism Christ gives. Amen.

A fire needs three things to burn. Can you name them?

(Answer: Oxygen, heat and fuel.)

Girl Warned Not To Be So Funny On Dates Is TV Joker

NEW YORK (AP) — When other girls went out on dates their mothers told them to behave. Or be home by 11. Gail Parent's mother always said: "Now don't be so funny."

But funny she remained, so much so that at 32 she is in the $100,000-a-year bracket as a comedy writer. And her mother's worst fears were not confirmed: Gail got married a week after she was graduated from New York University.

For five years Gail has been a major writer with the Carol Burnett Show. She is the only woman with a top comedy writing job in Hollywood. She and her partner, Kenny Solms, together dreamed up the "As the Stomach Turns," skits, the hilarious Burnett take-off on soap operas.

Gail has also written for TV specials, for The Movie of The Week. She's done a movie, is working on a Broadway play and has written a book, "Sheila Levine is Dead and Living in New York." The book is sneaking up toward the best-seller list.

Gail recalls that when teams were chosen, the last words were always, "Okay, then, you've got Gail."

"At camp, the only way I could get the other kids on my bed was to be funny," she recalls. Her mother encouraged her. "She was a good laugher and I started wondering if I could make other people laugh, too."

How do you become a comedy writer?

"Nobody starts out to become comedy writers," said Gail. "I just hoped I would get married in college so I wouldn't have to worry about what I was going to do." In high school she had memorized every skit of Nichols and May, then a popular comedy team.

In college, she met Solms, also a devout Nichols and May fan. Gail and Solms began improving their own skits.

They started selling oneliners to Vaughn Meader, the comic who did "The First Family" album during the Kennedy administration. Then came $10a-week skits they sold to a New York nightclub.

They stalked apartment buildings where young comedians lived, offering them material.

They even did a television show, writing the skit, hiring the comic...and dancing.

"It was one of those shows where a high school was invited to dance. Not enough showed up, so Kenny and I danced, too."

Their big break came with an album satirizing the wedding of Lucy Baines Johnson. Carol Burnett's husband, who is the executive producer of the show, heard it and hired them.

Gail and her husband, Lair Parent, moved to Hollywood where they still live with their two sons, aged 3 and 8.

He was one of her former teachers at NYU and is now directing TV projects for UCLA.

How does he react to having a comic around the house?

"Wonderful," she said. "He only gets upset when one of the children does something that requires discipline. I see something funny in it and laugh instead."

If one million people each thought their vote didn't count—their nonvote could determine the election.

What's The Law?

The Case Of The Fallen Smoker

THE CASE OF THE FALLEN SMOKER
By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Ruppert was a hard- working attorney for a public agency. While most public employees can handle the gaff, handling the work fell upon poor Ruppert. In fact, he became so overwhelmed with what he had to do, and he became so burdened by the tensions and pressures of his job, that he increased his smoking habit to such a rate that it was near impossible to find him in his smoke- filled room.

One day, however, when they did find poor old Ruppert, he was dead. His heavy smoking had ruined his oxygen tanks and he died of lung cancer.

Shortly thereafter, Ruppert's widow filed a claim for death benefits under the Workman's Compensation Law only to be turned down.

"Sorry," she was told, "but Ruppert died because he smoked too much and not because of his job."

"He smoked too much because of the pressures and tensions of his employment," retorted the tenacious widow. "His job killed him as sure as I stand here."

Intent upon collecting, Ruppert's widow pressed her claim before an appropriate tribunal.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit the widow to collect benefits as result of the fallen smoker?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that since it was credible that Ruppert increased his smoking habit because of his heavy work load and the pressures and tensions of his job, and since his heavy smoking was a contributing factor in the development of his lung cancer, his death arose out of his employment so as to entitle his widow to death benefits.

(Based upon a 1967 California Workman's Compensation appeals Board Decision)

Relaxed Pilot Wants Blimps Back

MIAMI (AP) — As a member of a select society of dirigible pilots, Capt. Frank Hogan would like to bring back the blimp so people can fly low and slow and rediscover America.

"For the last 10 years, speed, speed, speed has been the thing," says Hogan, the pilot of a blimp named Mayflower. "People are getting away from that."

At the age of 50, Hogan has spent the past two decades guiding the big buzzing balloons through the nation's skies. He is one of 20 dirigible pilots flying for Goodyear Inc., which operates four of the five blimps now operating in the world.

He hopes for the day of the "superblimp," a giant ship carrying 300 people instead of six passengers and a pilot, which would slowly tool across the American continent at 40 or 50 miles an hour.

Passengers could relax in luxurious lounges, "watching the jack rabbits" bouncing along the prairies as he now does on promotional trips between visits to various cities.

"I think I could sell a lot of trips across the country," Hogan said. "Now, all a person sees when he goes from one city to another is two airports and a motel."

The former World War II bomber pilot said his visions are mostly wistful. Most people still think of the 1937 Hindenburg disaster at Lakehurst, N. J., when they think of blimps, he said.

Modern blimps are filled with nonflammable helium in contrast to the volatile hydrogen gas which consumed the Hindenburg, killing 37 people.

Britons Take Jungle Hike In Hope Of Tea With Headhunters

LONDON (AP) — Eighteen Britons flew off to New Guinea Friday night for a 23-day hike through the jungle in hopes of having tea with a tribe of headhunters.

The trail-blazing group, aged 20 to 60, includes four women. They are paying Cook's, the travel agency, $1,320 for the ultimate in get-away-from-it-all package tours.

Apart from swamps, crocodiles, snakes and exhausting marches through some of the world's most rugged country, they face monsoon rains that sweep New Guinea at this time of year.

The Stone Age head-hunters live in the mountainous hinterland of Australian-administered New Guinea. They are not expected to be too much of a threat.

The tribe, called Biami, is reported to have given up cannibalism long ago. They do, however, keep a primitive museum of war implements and the heads of their victims near the tribal home at Mt. Hagan.

Cook's advises: "Though not classified as a danger area, the patrol will need to proceed with caution."

Did Soviet Back Anti-Mao Plot?

By RAY CROMLEY

(Last of two related columns.)

WASHINGTON (NEA)

A series of intriguing questions is raised by the anti-Mao Tse-tung document Mao himself is now circulating throughout China:

- Was the Soviet Union prepared to give active aid and support to a group of high ranking Communist civilians and military men seeking to overthrow Mao?
- Specifically, was Moscow prepared to use its military forces to so occupy Mao's armies and air force units he would not have the ability to put down an armed rebellion by his opponents?
- Was the Soviet Union prepared to give those who planned to rebel against Mao a "temporary nuclear protection umbrella?"

These implied acts of Soviet cooperation with the rebels were specifically spelled out in the document reportedly written by Lin Li-kuo, son and ally of Lin Piao, Mao Tse-tung's "heir" until deposed last year, allegedly after this "secret" document was discovered.

What is not clear is whether the Russians actually promised this cooperation or whether the plotters only hoped they would give it. The document talks of secret negotiations with Moscow and lists the Russian forms of cooperation.

But does the document mean Moscow "would" or that Moscow "could." That is the question.

If this Soviet cooperation had indeed been promised, or if Mao, in fact, was afraid that it would be forthcoming, he in truth had compelling reasons for seeking some sort of relationship with President Nixon and the United States.

For if there was this plot in which some of China's top military and political chieftains were involved, and if they did have the promised cooperation of the U.S.S.R. then Mao last year faced (and perhaps still faces) a much more serious threat than a border war with Russia or a Russian preemptive strike to knock out China's growing military nuclear industry.

There is reason to believe that a united China could live through a war with the Soviet Union, and that Mao could survive such a war. But if, during that war, he faced a civil war led by some of his ablest and most experienced associates, then Mao would most certainly go down to defeat before this combined onslaught from without and within.

What makes this scenario the more intriguing is that Mao may have inserted these Soviet lines into the document in order to unify his people against the Russians and to reduce the opposition, strong in some Chinese circles, to association with the United States.

Perhaps long-time friend Lin Piao was merely the scapegoat Mao required for his shifting policies.

Archie Bunker Helped McGovern

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — With assists from television's Archie Bunker and Minnesota's Hubert H. Humphrey, Democratic presidential nominee George McGovern is seeking to dispel any image of radicalism lingering about him in crucial California.

Humphrey chimed in by telephone, and actor Carroll O'Connor via a campaign commercial, as McGovern broadcast his campaign wares in a question-and-answer session televised statewide Friday night.

In between, McGovern got calls from some critics who accused him of mudslinging and mind-changing. "The show is heating up," he said. McGovern also heard from the man who wanted to know why he keeps saying President Nixon should have ended the war four years ago "when he wasn't even in office."

McGovern acknowledged Nixon didn't take office until Jan. 20, 1969, but said "there's no point in quibbling over a few weeks."

"I want to give him credit for any settlement, even if it comes on the day before the election," McGovern said. "I'm not interested in a political issue, I'm not interested in what my statements on the war do to me politically."

O'Connor, who plays Archie Bunker, the bigoted blue-collar star of the television program "All in the Family," appeared in a commercial denouncing what he called "the radicalism of the present administration."

"Radicalism is what any conservative man must try to remove from authority, and that is why I as a conservative man am going to vote with confidence for Sen. George McGovern," said O'ConnorBunker.

Humphrey called in from Mankato, Minn., for a 3½-minute chat with McGovern, whose views he sharply denounced during their California presidential primary campaign.

McGovern asked him to spend some more time campaigning for the ticket in California. "We think with your added voice to what we've already said out here, it may provide that extra margin that we need to carry California on Nov. 7," the nominee said.

"George, I'm going to try to do that," said Humphrey. "I have a feeling that things are on the move for you and they're on the move strongly ...."

"After hearing about Mr. Nixon's vetoes today, my glands are all revved up," said the Minnesota senator.

McGovern denounced the nine vetoes, too, as he campaigned in Los Angeles Friday with Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

Later, he said Nixon should "call a special session of Congress and give us a chance to override those vetoes."

Congress is in adjournment and they were pocket vetoes which can't be overridden anyhow.

Kennedy was campaigning with McGovern today at a meeting of Democrats from Orange County, one of the most conservative counties in the nation.

At one stop Friday, McGovern jokingly said that Kennedy had told him he couldn't serve eight years in the White House, only four. Kennedy is widely viewed as a top prospect for future Democratic presidential nomination.

MEETING OF MINDS on a vital issue—national security. President Nixon and Defense Secretary Secretary Melvin Laird exchange private words during a White House conference.

What You Want To Know?

Q. I saw the movie of the week "The Reluctant Heroes" on TV, and I was delightfully surprised to see Ken Berry give such a good performance in a relatively serious part. Although the story had a lot of comedy, it had its serious moments too and Berry was right in there with the best of them. Is Ken Berry going to have another TV series soon? I enjoyed hiw work in both "F Troop" and "Mayberry, F.F.D."— S.M., Albany, N.Y.

A. Ken Berry is not slated for a new TV series of his own but he's very busy guest starring on many TV shows, including variety hours. Ken is a triple threat talent...that is, he can act, sing and dance.

Charles Schulz Finds Ideas In A Variety Of Sources

"You're Elected, Charlie Brown"

Sunday, October 29, 6:30-7:00 P.M.

When something intrigues writer- artist Charles M. Schulz, that something will more than likely appear in his famous "Peanuts" comic strips and in the television specials based on the adventures of Charlie Brown and his friends.

Schulz's enthusiasm for baseball is translated into seasonal disasters on the diamond for pitcher Brown and his ill- starred All- Stars.

Snoopy dreams of triumphs on the ice- hockey rink (as Schulz once did) and flies his Sopwith Camel with a verve that stems from Schulz's hobby of researching the exploits of the World War I pursuit plane.

Now Schulz has "discovered" call- in talk shows.

A parody on these broadcast conversations between listeners and emcees on hundreds of stations around the country will be a part of "You're Elected, Charlie Brown," new animated- cartoon Peanuts special, to be broadcast Sunday, Oct. 29 (6:30— 7:00PM,) on the CBS Television Network.

Schulz got hooked on the talkathons during a period of enforced rest following a siege of flu. "After listening to a number of these programs where people just pick up their telephones ane engate the host in conversation, I was struck by the different types of callers-- and the similarity of their various approaches." "There are day people and night people, angry people and happy people, opinionated people and vague people-- and, mostly, people who just like to talk," Schulz explains. "I made notes of some of the things people actually say with the idea of working the subject into a strip segment."

In "You're Elected, Charlie Brown," Schulz found the perfect spot in which to share his "research" with Peanuts' fans.

With Linus running for the office of school president, his campaign manager, Lucy Van Pelt, sets him up on a local talk show to "get his message to the people." Callers are invited to telephone their questions to the candidate.

Director and engineer for the broadcast is-- Snoopy.

Singing Group Guest On

"The New Bill Cosby Show"

Music man Ray Charles and his Raelettes singing group guest star on "The New Bill Cosby Show" Monday, Oct. 30 (9:00— 10:00 PM,) on the CBS Television Network.

Charles, the Raelettes, the Quincy Jones Orchestra and host Cosby join to present "Look What They've Done to My Song." Later, Charles sings "Hit the Road, Jack" and "America the Beautiful."

The "Wife of the Week" sketch offers Cosby in his usual husband role and Teresa Graves as Mrs. Nervous, who hears ominous sounds in the night. Another sketch finds Cosby and Charles at an amusement park, patronizing a shooting gallery operated by Quincy Jones. In a comedy dialogue, Cosby explains to cast regular Michael Elias how an American can arrange to be buried inexpensively in Hong Kong. In another skit, cast regulars Susan Tolsky and Lola Falana portray a fortune teller and a would- be- customer, respectively.

Rounding out the program are a series of monologues by Cosby and a pair of performances by the star as the show's familiar super- dude character, who's continually on the prowl for a cutie but never quite successful.

The Little People

7:30-8:00 P.M.

Tabo Matsuda (Russell Masunaga) is unhappy as he watches his parents, Hiroshi and Miiko (Edwin Kuniyoshi and Lita Kuniyoshi), become naturalized, but the reason is not what Dr. Sean Jamison (Brian Keith) and his staff assume.

Dr. Anne Jamison and Nurse Puni (Shelley Fabares and Victoria Young) are very concerned and Sean promises to talk with Tabo. Meanwhile, the lad gets some of the paint which Ronnie and Alfred (Michael Gray and Stephen Hague) are using and paints a dirty word on the hospital wall and in other places. Sean undergoes many embarrassing moments while attempting to obliterate the word.

This episode was written by Garry Marshall and Bob Brunner and directed by Richard Lang.

'Ghost Story'

8:00-9:00 P.M.

A mysterious bond between identical twins reaches back from the grave to torture the surviving twin and her mother. Eleanor Parker and Pamela Franklin guest- star; Sebastian Cabot is host.

Christina (Miss Franklin) returns home after the death of her twin sister and father and tries to learn the reason for their demise from her mother, Paula (Miss Parker). She seeks the aid of a mystic, Mrs. Eliscu (Signe Hasso), in a seance to call her sister back from the dead.

Tod Andrews is cast as Christina's father, Andrew. Andrew Duggan plays the neighbor, Jeremy, and Stephen Brooks is his son, Ethan.

"Half a Death" was written by Henry Slesar and directed by Les Martinson.

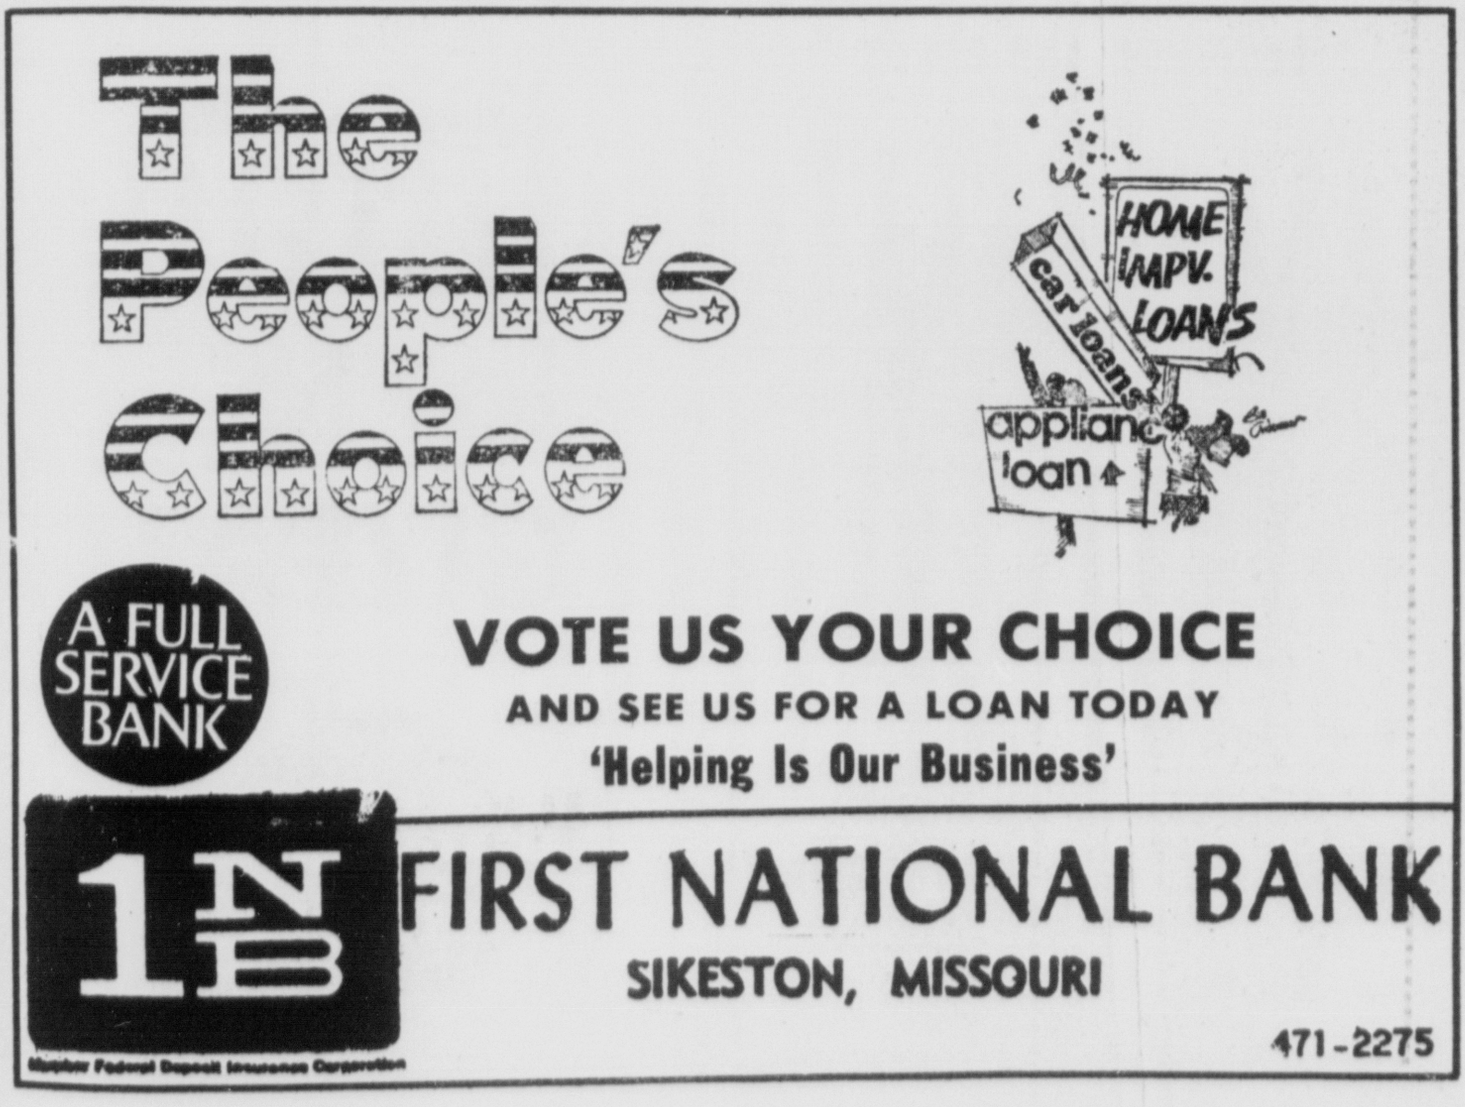
'Banyon'

9:00-10:00 P.M.

Officially ordered off the case, Police Lt. Pete McNeil (Richard Jaeckel) hires Banyon (Robert Forster) to solve a suspected murder that has bothered him for nearly seven years. Jack Cassidy and Diana Muldaur guest- star.

Seven years earlier, businessman Jennings Marshall (Morgan Sterne) reported that his partner had mysteriously disappeared, but McNeil is convinced Marshall murdered him. McNeil wants Banyon to prove it was murder before the legal waiting period is up and Marshall can collect insurance. Banyon attempts to learn more about the missing man by visiting his widow, Paula Vander (Miss Muldaur). Later a mystery man (Cassidy) attempts to hire Banyon away from the case.

Milton S. Gelman wrote the script; Ralph Senensky directed.



NBC

'Emergency'

"Fuzz Lady"

Saturday-Nov. 4 - 7:00-8:00 P.M.

Johnny Gage (Randolph Mantooth) has woman trouble and Rampart emergency is besieged by a rash of burglaries.

Gage and Roy DeSoto (Kevin Tighe) rush to the scene of a mugging in which the culprit's arm was broken by Sheila Thomas (Sharon Gless), an overzealous policewoman working undercover. Gage falls for her. The rescue of Gus Williams (Paul Fix) from a fire leads to a controversy with Dr. Mike Morton (Ron Pinkard), which Dr. Brackett (Robert Fuller) settles to the paramedics' benefit. Nurse McCall and Dr. Early (Julie London and Bobby Troup) encounter successive thefts of hospital equipment. Sheila is assigned the case and Gage has to admit that he can't pick women. This episode was written by Michael Donovan and directed by Chris Nyby Jr.

(Emergency!" will be pre- empted Oct. 28 by "NBC Saturdan Night at the Movies.")

What You Want To Know

Q. I am one of those fans who saw "LoveStory" five times and cried each time and I don't care who knows it. I, of course, being a girl, fell madly in love with Ryan O'Neal. Is he going to star in a TV series soon? That's what I would really like...to have Ryan in a series on TV where I can tune in and watch that incredibly handsom guy every week.—K.P., Paterson, N.J.

A. Ryan O'Neal is a hot movie name these days, resulting from his popularity in "Love Story." He has little time for a regular TV series. He recently completed a film comedy titled "What's Up, Doc?" with none other than Barbra Streisand.
